Japan will "denounce" the naval pact of 1922, that gave Britain and the United States a 5-5 naval equality and limited Japan to three.

Japan finds this ratio humiliating, it hurts her pride, diminishes her chances of beating some foreign country should she feel inclined in that direction.

She will now end the pact, as she has a right to do, and build as many ships as she pleases.

More power to her. It is nobody's business what she builds, unless some one wants to go to war about it, which would be silly.

The United States, for every battleship constructed by a possible enemy, should build a squadron of 54 bombing planes. They would sink any new battleship and several of its mates with ease, and would make the owners of new ships afraid to send them out of port.

Fifty-four bombing planes would cost $3,780,000. One first-class battleship in this country costs 50 millions. Japan, more efficient, could build about the same ship for 16 millions. Three and a half millions worth of good bombing planes would sink several such ships.

This country expects no quarrel with Japan, first, because Japan is intelligent; second, because there is no reason for any quarrel.

War threatened between Russia and Japan, but that threat is over, now that Russia has 900 bombing planes and a fleet of submarines at Vladivostok, within easy striking distance of Tokio, and every Japanese industrial center.

There is no reason for war with us unless somebody in Europe or Asia is particularly anxious for trouble. Mexicans used to say they could beat the United States easily enough, if it were not for Texas. They had seen Texas.

Japan and the nations of Europe have seen the United States, but, in the language of a well-known actor, "they have not seen anything yet."

They would really see something if they started a war against this country, and that is said with the national modesty that distinguishes the average American citizen.

Americans are interested in a picture called "The Last Wilderness," exhibited for the first time today at Warner Brothers Theater in Los Angeles.

Those that have seen pictures made in Asia and Africa, with the same old lions, tigers, snakes and crocodiles, will realize that the big game and the magnificent scenery of their own country far surpass in interest anything to be seen on any other continent.

"The Last Wilderness," a picture made by Howard Hill, in which all shooting is done with the bow and arrow by Mr. Hill, who is a champion in the use of that weapon, will interest Americans and educate them in the beauty of their own country and wild game.

The hunting of the big game of America is done in the high Rockies of the state of Wyoming, and the picture includes some of the most beautiful scenery in America, plus great droves of elk and deer, huge bears, and other creatures, that once fed and supplied with clothing our predecessors, the red Indian. Warner Brothers are congratulated upon showing this picture, because of its educational value, it should be seen in every school and college, as well as in theaters.

The death of Mrs. Mary Harriman Rumsey, daughter of E. H. Harriman, railroad builder, is a loss to good citizenship. When she was introduced to society on leaving college, Mrs. Rumsey started the Junior League, intel-

Two Soviet Leaders Reported Executed

ZINOVIEV AND KAMENEV BELIEVED VICTIMS

By International News Service

Berlin, Dec. 20—Two of the most outstanding figures in Russian politics, Grigory Zinoviev and Lev Borisovitch Kamenev, have been tried and executed as heads of the conspiracy that resulted in the assassination of Sergei Kirov, secretary of the political bureau, according to persistent rumors circulated here.

The reports were denied in a telephone conversation with Moscow today, but it was said there is a rumor abroad in Moscow that Kamenev has been arrested.

G. Zinoviev

The 103 persons already executed in connection with Kirov's death, according to official advices from Moscow, were linked to the "Anti-Communist party for his opposition, and later was readmitted. Kamenev was once ousted, readmitted, then ejected again two years ago.

The unconfirmed arrest or execution of Zinoviev and Kamenev is a conceivable outgrowth of the old quarrel between Josef Stalin, Soviet dictator, and Leon Trotzky, exiled rival.

Both Zinoviev and Kamenev had been banished to isolated regions with other Trotzky partisians.

Soviet Officials Silent on Reports

By International News Service

Moscow, Dec. 20—Soviet officials today refused to confirm or deny the rumored arrest of Gregory Zinoviev, old-guard Bolshevik, whose supposedly defunct oppositionist organization was linked a few days ago with the assassin of Sergei M. Kirov.

Rumors of the arrest have been current since last night. Lev Borisovitch Kamenev, another old-line Bolshevik rumored to have been arrested also, is not believed implicated.

COUNCIL DEFIED BY ELY IN ROW

Governor Ely defied the executive council today by withdrawing the name of Paul E. Tierney for chairman of the Board of Tax Appeals, and simply designating Tierney on his own authority.

He then swore Tierney in as chairman.

Tierney has been a member of the board The council yesterday refused to confirm Francis X. Hurley, present state auditor, as a new member of the tax board.

The Tierney appointment as a chairman by a governor follows the precedent set in the case of Frank A. Goodwin, whom the governor demoted from chairmanship of the Boston Finance Commission. Goodwin had protested the appointment of Joseph Leonard as chairman in his place. The courts held that the governor had the power to do what he did.

Governor Ely, in the Tierney instance, is following the same line of action. As the case now stands, Alexander Holmes continues on the board as a hold-over, but not as chairman.

The council was again in session today in a war with the Governor over pardons and appointments. The council yesterday confirmed 12 appointments and rejected 13.

Search Ordered for South End Girl

Police throughout the state were requested today to search for Miss Victoria Ferris, 23, of Oak street, South End, missing from home since Armistice Day, when she is declared to have left the house to meet a male acquaintance.

She is described as "a good-looking girl," five feet four inches tall, weighing 115 pounds, with brown hair and eyes, a burn scar on her left forearm. She was wearing a black coat with fur collar, a green-and-brown check knit dress, dark brown stockings and tan shoes.

ROOSEVELT ORDERS TAX SURVEY

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 20—In a move intended to prevent the overlapping of taxes, President Roosevelt today directed the Treasury to investigate the federal, state and municipal tax systems.

A national conference on taxation next summer may result from the inquiry.

Secretary Morgenthau disclosed the plan today and shortly will name a staff to make the inquiry. He said:

"The study will look forward to zones of taxation and eliminating overlapping. It will include the question of who collects taxes the most economically. It might involve the question of the federal collection of all income taxes."

Morgenthau said the gasoline tax was an excellent example of a levy employed by both federal and state and sometimes local governments.

Investigators will look into the question of whether in such a case the federal government should make all the collection and then distribute revenue back to the states and local governments.

The question of tax exempt securities also will receive attention along with duplication in the assessment of liquor taxes.

In reply to questions, Morgenthau said the sales tax, used by a number of states, probably will receive attention in the tax inquiry.

"Anything that has to do with federal, state and municipal taxes will be considered," he added.

$40,000 TAKEN BY 5 BANDITS

Philadelphia, Dec. 20—A robber banu of five, one of whom police said they believe may have been the fugitive killer, Robert Mais, invaded a branch office of the Philadelphia Electric Company today, scooped up between $40,000 and $48,000 in cash, and fled in a waiting car.

Two of the 60 employes held up by the bandits partially identified the robber leader as Mais, fugitive from a Virginia prison from which he shot his way to freedom while awaiting execution for the slaying of a mail employe.

Long Must Face $500,000 Suit

Washington, Dec. 20 (AP)—The District of Columbia Supreme Court ruled today that Senator Huey Long of Louisiana must face trial on the $500,000 libel suit filed against him by Samuel T. Ansell.

Justice Peyton Gordon rejected Long's claim that his Senate position entitled him to immunity. Ansell was counsel for the Senate committee which investigated the election of Senator John H. Overton of Louisiana.

MR. HEARST on Disarmament and Japan's Policy

The following statement by William Randolph Hearst is reprinted from yesterday's issue of the Tokio Yomiuri Shimbun. The statement was given to the Japanese newspaper in response to a request for Mr. Hearst's views on Japan's intention to abrogate the Washington naval treaty.

JAPAN has an undeniable right to terminate the naval treaty and to do so without prejudice. Every nation has that right, as was clearly stated when the treaty was signed.

The only question is whether it is desirable to do so—desirable for Japan and beneficial for the world.

I do not think the termination of the naval treaty is necessarily a hostile move directed at the United States, although our people are compelled to realize that no nation builds a navy purely for parades.

But, even if it is not a hostile move, is it a judicious move on the part of Japan at this time when disarmament is being widely discussed and considered?

Is it a move which will add to the peace and tranquillity and stability of the world?

Would it not be wiser and finer, more in the lead of human progress, more in advance of human progress, for Japan to join the United States in demanding a reduction of armaments rather than an increase in them?

If, as you say, Japan does not expect to build a larger fleet, why terminate the treaty, and plunge the world into a race of naval construction which will be a burden upon all peoples, and a menace to world peace?

However, these are things for Japan to determine for herself.

No outsider can properly intrude into her immediate affairs.

I am only writing this brief statement because you have asked me what the opinion of America is on this question.

I believe that America stands back of President Roosevelt, and favors a general reduction of armaments; but if the nations of the world insist upon increasing armaments, in ever greater menace to the peace of the world and the safety of our country, then the United States will build, and must build, whatever fleets of ships and aeroplanes may be necessary to defend the American land and the American people from the outrage and destruction of war.

We have no hostile intent toward any power anywhere, but we have a firm determination to defend our shores against hostile aggression, and to enable our country to protect its peace and prosperity, even in the midst of a war-mad world.

WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST.

PROBER HITS $707,830 EXCESS

The city of Boston paid $707,830 more than the assessed valuation for land taken on the Boston side in connection with the construction of the Sumner vehicular tunnel to East Boston, according to a report made today to Mayor Mansfield by the Boston Finance Commission.

The report, which was submitted by Joseph Leonard, Finance Commission chairman, was originally requested by the mayor.

It asserts that excess payments over assessed value on land taken for the tunnel proper amounted to $584,300, and for the Haymarket square-Merrimac street alterations, $123,530. Merrimac street was widened as a tunnel approach.

According to the report, there were several instances in which the city paid in excess of 100 per cent over the assessed valuation, despite an agreement that the city would not pay more than 10 per cent in excess of the valuation without being compelled to do so by court.

The report also states that several speculators made wrong

AID RUSHED TO CRIPPLED SHIP

The coast guard cutter Champlain today was ordered to proceed to the assistance of the Boston steamer Severance, Captain Clifford Anderson, commanding, which reported herself helplessly adrift in a storm 19 miles south southwest of Fire Island.

The ship lost her rudder, according to radio advices received at coast guard headquarters here. A crew of 33 men is aboard the freighter.

The ship left Newport News, Va., Tuesday night with a cargo of 7500 tons of coal for Beverly. She is owned by the Diamond Steamship Corporation of State street. Originally the British steamer Gladstone, she was built in England in 1909 and was operated under the Danish and Norwegian flags before being purchased by her present owners.

BUSINESS LEADERS ASK RELIEF BURDEN RETURN TO STATES

CONFERENCE FOR RECOVERY BACKS ADMINISTRATION

By Associated Press

White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., Dec. 19—America's dominant business executives today wrote a conservative set of articles for cooperation with the government and listed several proposals and theories opposed by the Roosevelt administration.

The executives, concluding their joint business conference for recovery, found that "government, in exercising the proper responsibilities of leadership," is entitled to the "wholehearted support of business."

The report laid out "certain steps that may be taken to revive industry and accelerate recovery." The conferees declared:

RELIEF UP TO STATES

1—Return of the relief burden to the State as quickly as possible.

2—Opposition to use of public works and other works primarily for employment relief.

3—Opposition to unemployment insurance and old age pensions until they are proved sound.

4—Opposition to arbitrary determination and limitation of hours and wages, such as the 30-hour week.

5—Resignation of the government from any attempt to control local relationships between workers and employers.

6—Definite evidence of a determined effort to balance the budget, and saying "projects for government spending initiated to increase purchasing power would retard rather than aid recovery."

WANT ACTION ON DOLLAR

7—Definite action to fix the dollar value.

8—Modification of securities act.

9—Arbitrary limitation of "undue restruction of production, processing or distribution" should be guarded against.

10—Durable goods stimulation characterized "a major offensive against depression"; approval of federal housing administration, but opposition to direct government participation in housing given.

Roosevelt Ready to Study Program

(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press)

Washington, Dec. 20—President Roosevelt was pictured by high authorities today as ready to examine "on its merits" the program for recovery which captains of industry are bringing here after a three-day conference at White Sulphur Springs.

The opinion expressed in official quarters was that the President would be glad to receive any "co-operative suggestions" from business, labor, farmers and other groups as he puts his ideas on paper for the Congress meeting Jan. 3.

Liner Docks Here, Lashed by Storm

Two days late due to the mid-Atlantic ocean storm, the North German Lloyd liner Augsburg arrived in Boston today, docking at Mystic wharf at Charlestown.

Commander John Meller told a story of a howling hurricane which swept the ship off its course as waves lashed by snow, rain and sleet swept from bow to stern, tearing away the forward hatch.

STORM BRINGS DEATH TO 3

Raging storms that swept New England during the night, bringing snow and rain in the wake of gales that blew as hard as 70 miles an hour, caused three deaths and innumerable accidents, but the weather man said the worst was over today.

The dead are:

HARMON, MRS. NARRY, of Nashua, N. H., died of a heart attack, when her automobile skidded. She died at Nashua Hospital.

McGEE, JOHN J., of Cranston, R. I., who was run down by an automobile in Warwick, R. I. The driver, Vincent R. Healy, of Oakland Beach, R. I., was arrested.

REED, NORMAN, of Dresden Mills, Me., whose automobile slid down an icy hill and smashed into a tree. Two persons with him escaped.

Down off Groton, Ct., United States Navy Destroyer Semmes, at anchor, was so buffeted by the storm that her anchors dragged and she went aground.

It took combined forces of the coast guard, navy tugs and the Coast Guard Destroyer Faunce to drag the Semmes off. Damage was slight.

North and west of Boston suffered most in the storms. In the Berkshires, in western Massachusetts, in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont many roads were impassable because of ice and snow, it was reported.

Storm Warnings Issued on Coast

New York, Dec. 20 (INS)—The following storm warnings were issued today by the Weather Bureau:

"Storm warning: Change to northwest 9 a. m., Delaware Breakwater to Eastport. Disturbance of great intensity over Maine, moving north-northeastward, will cause strong winds and gale today and tonight.

"Change to northwest storm warnings and lower at sunset south of Delaware Breakwater to Virginia capes. Strong west winds today possibly reaching gale force at times."

Rice Routs Spiders

By International News Service

Hollywood, Dec. 20—Florence Rice, film star and daughter of Grantland Rice, sports writer, today had her first experience with the deadly black widow spider.

Going to a garage for a book, the actress found a den of 18 of the deadly insects.

Ladder Rescues Add Thrills to 'Hill' Fire

houses were threatened, and some damage was done to a house directly in the rear, in Irving street, where 20 persons were driven out.

Total damage was estimated at about $5000.

Firemen were forced to don gas masks to make their way into the burning building. George Eavzan, who lives at 50 Garden street, sounded the first alarm.

Eavzan smashed milk bottles against the windows to arouse occupants.

One of the most heroic of the ladder rescues was that of little Esther Morin, 4½-year-old niece of Mr. and Mrs. George Bingle.

Twenty persons were forced to flee the Irving street house when the flames threatened it, but they were able to return to their homes later.

Among those rescued in Garden street were the Bingle girl and her parents, W. W. Jones, R. W. Annable, Mrs. Ouila Savell, Bernard and D. Knowles, Miss Jane Pretty, Miss Louise Radding, Malcolm Burr Ripley.

Also Miss Ruth Giesen, Everett L. Stone, Norman E. Waitt, William Crandall, Lawrence Johnson and Vacile Larssnoff.

PROWLER TAKEN IN ROOF CHASE

Screams of two score frightened college misses, the scrunch of running feet on a Fenway rooftop, and the yells of pursuing police as they dodged around chimneys after a prowler disturbed the peace and quiet of the Back Bay early today.

When some of the excitement was ended by the crack of a patrolman's nightstick on the skull of the prowler, police believed they had captured a man who has been terrorizing women in the Back Bay and Cambridge for the last few weeks.

The captive gave the name of Frederick Marden, said he was 26, and that he lived in Norway street, Back Bay. He may be Fred Marden, and he may be 26, but he doesn't live in Norway street, police said.

The scene of the chase and capture is, incidentally, almost next door to the home of Police Commissioner Hultman.

The Fenway excitement started in the Stuart Club, an exclusive dormitory, catering to approved college girls who come from out of town and study in Boston's institutions. Miss Beatrice Williams, 30, the manager of the club, heard a noise in her fourth floor room and she telephoned police.

The patrolmen discovered, the visiting male had climbed one ~~of a nightstick and the captive was made.~~

The next sound was the crack of a nightstick and the capture was made.

Mae West Build for Film Opera

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

Hollywood, Dec. 20—Blonde Mae West, who always has a new trick up her sleeve, will now invade the sacred precincts of opera.

The star has talked Paramount into letting her sing one of the most famous of the arias in her new picture, "Now I'm a Lady."

The selection, familiar to all opera lovers, is "My Heart at Thy Sweet Voice," from Saint-Saens' "Samson and Delilah."

Mae won't burlesque the beautiful number. She'll sing it straight.

"Why shouldn't I sing opera?" she drawls. "I'm built for it."

Police Capture Runaway Barge

A lumber barge that had broken away from some wharf was recovered by Chelsea police today as it neared the Charlestown-Chelsea bridge.

A guard at the Chelsea Naval Hospital notified the authorities that the barge was floating free down the Mystic river toward the bridge. Police jumped aboard and made it secure.

Despondent, Takes Life

Warwick, R. I., Dec. 20—Despondent because of the deaths of his wife and son within a year, Nils Sundberg, , 63, committed suicide by slashing and hanging himself.

NOLAN IS BACK ON STAND

John C. Nolan of Cambridge, self-acclaimed jury fixer, who was summoned to the Mayberry disbarment hearing by the defense, but who was called to testify for the prosecution after a surprise move by the latter, was back in Supreme court today.

This time, however, while it was again at the behest of counsel for Attorney Lowell A. Mayberry, the man under fire, it was planned to use Nolan for the original purpose—as a defense witness.

Attorney Samuel Hoar, Jr., chief counsel for Mayberry, had also summoned again Benjamin C. Polack of Cambridge, another witness, who yesterday preceded Nolan to the stand. Attorney Hoar said the defense had already paid Nolan's witness fee for yesterday, as well.

TELLS OF RING

Nolan's testimony, told calmly and frankly, was a tale of the "inside workings" of a ring of jury fixers in which he asserted that the director was John J. Donnelly.

Donnelly has already been convicted of jury-fixing and the prosecution seeks to link him with Attorney Mayberry.

Nolan quoted Donnelly as saying to him, on an occasion when he was giving the witness instructions on fixing, that "Mayberry is trying the case."

Nolan, under cross-examination, testified that he had said at one time that "the gang has done quite a job on Mayberry." Then he added:

"But I also said I thought the gang had done quite a job on me. You know I didn't invite myself into this."

Judge Henry T. Lummus, who is presiding, wanted Nolan to explain the remark and the witness said he thought he must "have been delivered into the case," that someone told of the things he did about jury-fixing.

Both Nolan and the preceding witness, Polack, had been granted immunity from prosecution, it was brought out during the proceedings.

Farley Is Santa

Washington, Dec. 20—Postmaster General Farley extended a personal Christmas greeting to his entire administrative force by shaking hands with each one of the 1600 workers.

He then played Santa Claus by giving them the balance of the day for shopping. Every office was empty by 2 o'clock.

U. S. TO REFUSE PART IN SPRING NAVY PARLEY

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service

Washington, Dec. 20—The United States will flatly refuse to resume preliminary naval discussions in London next spring unless Japan relents from its demand for a navy as powerful as the American fleet.

This was learned on reliable authority here today as the naval discussions in London collapsed over Japan's decision to denounce the Washington naval treaty.

The position of this government is that Japan has dealt the most destructive blow ever delivered the cause of naval disarmament.

An Anglo-Japanese effort to set a date in London for resumption of the naval discussions next spring was blocked by American Ambassador Norman H. Davis, on instructions from the State Department.

Davis was instructed not to commit this government to participation in any further conversations.

To commit itself to further conversations with Japan after this step might, in the opinion of the State Department, be regarded as acquiescence to Tokio's action.

Meanwhile, it does not even favor immediate discussions with Great Britain concerning the British suggestion for an Anglo-American naval understanding.

With two years to go before the treaty becomes invalid, despite Japan's denunciation of it, the view prevails here that the most advisable policy is to wait and see what may happen within the next year, at least.

Japan Ready for Navy Building Race

By International News Service

Tokio, Dec. 20—Defiance of other naval powers, with the first warning from so high an authority that Japan will not shrink from a naval building race, was hurled today by Japan's foreign minister, Koki Hirota.

"If the powers fail to recognize Japan's fair and just attitude," Hirota said, referring to his country's decision to kill the 5-5-3 ratio by abrogating the Washington treaty, "if they insist on having their own way, Japan may refuse to make concessions, and will resist them."

HELD IN ATTACK ON WIFE, MAN

In a furious battle in the home of Mrs. Margaret King, 30, of Spencer avenue, Chelsea, Charles Ward, 29, an occupant of the second floor, was choked into unconsciousness by Warren King, 31, of Howell court, Chelsea, her estranged husband, it was charged in Chelsea court today.

Mrs. King was also beaten and choked, it was testified—and out of it all, King was sent to jail for 30 days on an old suspended sentence, appealed two more sentences and was held for the grand jury on a charge of attack with intent to murder Ward.

According to the testimony, King broke into his wife's home at 2:30 a. m., today and attacked her. Ward, hearing her screams, rushed upstairs and found King throttling the woman, it was declared. King then went to grips with Ward in a battle that ended when police arrived in response to neighbors' calls.

Officer's Son Drowns

New London, Ct., Dec. 20 (INS)—Robert M. England, six, son of Lieutenant and Mrs. John England of Fishers Island, N. Y., drowned in a small lake on the island when thin ice broke beneath him, it was learned here today.

Sabre Slices Wedding Cake! Lady Forbes, Count Marry

By Associated Press

Newtown Forbes, Irish Free State, Dec. 20—The popular Lady Moira Mary Forbes, whose mother is the daughter of the late Ogden Mills of New York, was married today to Comte Louis de Brantes.

The ceremony was performed in the chapel on the grounds of the historic castle Forbes, the Irish home of the bride's parents, the earl and countess of Granard.

M. Guerlet, the French minister, was one of the witnesses Lady Moira, 24, known as a hard riding horsewoman, for tht last four years has bten master of the Longford Harriers.

A five-tiered wedding cake was cut by the bride with her husband's sword, worn as an officer in the French army. Comte De Brantes is 34.

The village of Newtown Forbes donned festive dress for teh occasion. Miles of bunting and sreamers decorated houses.

Tonight candles were burned in every village window anl the local convent will blazew ith hundreds of colored electric bulbs as the nuns celebrate the event.

Cut Gloria Cash! Court Fight On

'Save' Is Idea

WOULD REDUCE INCOME TO MRS. VANDERBILT

By Universal Service

New York, Dec. 20—The custodians of little Gloria Vanderbilt's fortune began in Surrogate's court here what was regarded as an attempt to conserve her estate by reducing the allowance to her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt.

A petition presented by the custodians, George W. Wickersham and Thomas B. Gilchrist, pointed out that Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney would pay virtually all the expenses of the little girl, whose custody she recently won. Mrs. Whitney, it was said, would pay all except medical, surgical and dental expenses, which were estimated at $1500 for 1935.

On the strength of the petition, Surrogate Foley signed an order requiring Mrs. Vanderbilt and the United States Fidelity and Guaranty Company to be represented in court a week from today.

They must show cause why the custodians should not be granted an order permitting them to use the child's income from her estate during 1935.

$4000 Monthly

Under the present court order, the custodians pointed out, the income is to be paid by them to Mrs. Vanderbilt and applied by her to the education, maintenance and support of the child. The income allowed by the court has been $4000 a month, Mrs. Vanderbilt receiving $1000 of this for her own use.

The custodians also informed the court that they had asked Mrs. Vanderbilt what she would need to defray the cost of the week-end custody of the child she received under Supreme Court Justice Carew's recent order. They asked that she show cause why she should not make such an estimate.

Little Gloria's personal property, according to Gilchrist and Wickersham, consists of bonds and cash in banks valued on their books at $2,957,257.

Happiest Woman!

In addition to this, the child is entitled to receive from the trustees under the will of her grandfather, the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, something more than $750,000. A settlement of accounts in this estate is pending in the courts.

Meanwhile, Mrs. Vanderbilt was preparing to receive her daughter at her home this Saturday for the first time since the child was awarded to Mrs. Whitney a month ago. She said:

"I am the happiest woman alive as the result of the appellate division's decision giving me the right to see my child without hurting my appeal. I'll do everything I can for her."

REMEMBER VON STROHEIM? HE'S BROKE, TOO

By Universal Service

Los Angeles, Dec. 20—Years ago Eric Von Stroheim made $5000 a week.

Today, he asked a friend to loan him $5.

Back of it lies one of those strange stories of Hollywood's fickle ways.

Eric Von Stroheim

It was told by the film director in the city prosecutor's office where his first wife, Mrs. Agnes May Von Stroheim, claimed he had failed to provide for his 18-year-old son, Eric, Jr. Von Stroheim said:

"I have exactly $11.34 in a bank. When an outstanding check comes in I'll be $2 overdrawn."

A. L. Hershaman, city attorney, asked if Von Stroheim could contribute $5 weekly toward the support of the son. He said he would try.

Then he turned to a friend—

"Lend me the first payment, will you?"

There was no complaint issued.

Unconscious 3 Months

By Associated Press

Springfield, Dec. 20—The grand jury today considered the strange case of Mrs. Mildred Hoenig, 42, formerly of Richmond, Va., who has been unconscious in a hospital here for more than three months. Mrs. Hoenig was found unconscious, and her 15-year-old son, Harold, was found dead, in their gas-filled home here on Sept. 12.

Police charged that the woman intended that both she and her son should die from the gas.

Taken to a hospital, Mrs. Hoenig has remained constantly in an unconscious and partly paralyzed condition. Her eyes are open but fail to react when a light is flashed in front of them. She is fed liquid food by means of a tube inserted in the nose. When first taken to the hospital Mrs. Hoenig weighed 110 pounds. She now weighs about 90 pounds.

Local physicians say that her case is attracting considerable attention in medical circles, since there are only a few instances on record of persons having remained unconscious for so long a time from gas poisoning.

If she does recover, Mrs. Hoenig probably will face a charge of murder which the police are prepared to place.

Fashion's Eye on Mrs. Roosevelt

Best Dressed

DESIGNERS PICK BABY AND DEB IN LISTINGS

Copyright, 1934, the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 20—The critical eye of American fashion designers surveyed the style scene today and selected the country's best dressed women, heading the list with Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt.

They made it an All-American selection, covering several fields of women's activities, and while in the mood also nominated a best-dressed baby.

Mrs. Roosevelt was selected as the best dressed American woman in public life. Here are the others:

Mrs. Robert H. McAdoo, smartest dressed society matron.

Mrs. William Woodward, most fashionable dowager.

Elsa Maxwell, most tastefully clad party hostess.

Ina Claire, best dressed actress on the stage.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney, best attired sportswoman.

Gladys Swarthout, best dressed singer.

Amelia Earhart, smartest dressed in aviation.

Georgia O'Keefe, most fashionably dressed painter.

Fannie Hurst, best dressed writer.

Betty Morris of Park avenue, most chic debutante.

And the baby? John Drayton Cochran, blue-eyed son of Mr. and Mrs. Drayton Cochran of New York.

The best dressed baby affects woolly and pink sweaters and soft white muslin, sometimes with a wisp of lace. His grandmother is Princess Hohenlohe Schillingfurst, widow of Gifford Cochran, millionaire turfman.

Blue Her Favorite

Mrs. Roosevelt dresses with admirable taste for her manifold activities. Her clothes are conservative, but of excellent materials.

Amelia Earhart has flawless sports clothes and designs them herself. So has Mrs. John Hay Whitney, the great horsewoman.

The best dressed "deb," the blue-eyed daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Gouverneur Morris, has light brown hair, chic but fairly simple clothes, and a frank, open face.

To Kay Francis the whole thing is line. Her clothes are extremely simple—often molded, with a low square neckline.

Tallahassee, Fla., Dec. 20—Jim Williams, a Negro who once lived through eternity strapped to an electric chair awaiting death, will leaves state's prison a free man.

Condemned to death for killing his wife, William sat in the electric chair 10 minutes while prison officials argued over who would throw the switch.

When they couldn't agree, Williams was taken from the chair and later his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment.

He's been such a good prisoner the pardon board granted him a conditional pardon as a Christmas present.

Cox, president of the Home Protective Association of Jacksonville, Fla., is refusing food in protest against his conviction of violating state insurance laws.

He says he will continue to go without food until he gets "justice in the courts."

DEATH! Found in NEW RAY

DEADLY USE IN WAR LOOMS

'CURE' POWER IS SHOWN; MICE DIE IN TESTS

By Universal Service

London, Dec. 20—A mysterious new ray with "kill-and-cure" powers, possibly the forerunner of a weapon of future warfare, has been revealed at the British Institute of Radiologists.

Specific details of the potential death-strewing mechanism are being granted with the utmost care, but one of the inventors gave the following information to Universal Service.

"Extreme care must be used in experimenting with the ray. Even then, we frequently suffer acute headaches when working with it.

"From our experiments it seems that a death-ray which will kill a human being instantly and at any distance is only a matter of transmitting ultra short waves with sufficient power. There is no limit to the distance the waves can travel —with terrible effect."

The experimenters know that the ray is deadly, but they don't know why. One of them said:

"We don't know what it is that kills them. The heat produced by the ultra short, or high frequency, wave is not alone sufficient to kill."

WIFE FILES SUIT ON HUNNEWELL

By Associated Press

San Francisco, Dec. 20—Mrs. Helen Cirese Hunnewell, attractive young Chicago attorney, has filed suit in Superior Court here asking separate maintenance from Harry H. Hunnewell, her wealthy husband.

She charged Hunnewell threatened her life, beat her, took other women into their Beverly Hills mansion, and was frequently intoxicated.

The action was filed Dec. 14 and came to light here today after Superior Judge Thomas Graham cited Hunnewell to appear Dec. 28 to show cause why he should not contribute to her support, pay the cost of her suit and attorney's fees.

Hunnewell, member of a prominent Boston family, brought divorce proceedings against his wife in Reno, Nev., in March, 1930, charging extreme cruelty. At that time they had been married only a year.

Mrs. Hunnewell a week later countered with a cross complaint charging her husband with infidelity. Hunnewell left Reno soon afterward.

In July, 1933, Superior Judge J. Emmett Walsh dismissed the action on motion of Hunnewell's attorneys, holding that Hunnewell was not a legal resident of Nevada, even though he had lived in the state the required six weeks.

Mrs. Hunnewell in her suit here charged her husband has not supported her since their separation. In her complaint she said the value of his property is "in excess of $3,000,000. Hunnewell lives in southern California.

POPE OBSERVES ANNIVERSARY

By Associated Press

Vatican City, Dec. 20—Pope Pius today commemorated the 55th anniversary of his ordination as a priest.

He celebrated mass in his private chapel and next Sunday a special Te Deum mass will be heard in the Basilica of St. John Lateran, where on December 20, 1879, he entered the priesthood as the Reverend Father Ambrose Damien Achille Ratti.

Today is also the fifth anniversary of the first time in more than half a century that a Pope emerged from the Vatican. It was on this date in 1929 that Pope Pius went to the Basilica of St. John Lateran to celebrate the 50th anniversary of his ordination.

Midnight Show for Basket Fund

Floor shows from Cocoanut Grove, the Mayfair and the Cascades, as well as vaudeville and legitimate theater stars, will take part in the midnight show at the Park Theater tomorrow night for the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund and to buy shoes for needy school children.

The regular Minsky burlesque show will be on the bill, with Sunya Slane, Evelyn Whitney, Louise Stewaart and Charles Marshall included in the cast. The Minsky brothers have insisted on paying personally all expenses.

On Sunday morning at 9 o'clock there will be a Christmas shoe party, which Governor-elect James M. Curley will attend and at which Bennie Moore will play Santa Claus.

Complaint Worded Wrong, He's Freed

Edward Stevens of Washington street, Boston, candidate for Governor on the Communist ticket, was cleared today of a charge of speaking without a permit because of an error in the complaint.

Stevens was arrested in Quincy during the campaign because he failed to comply with a city ordinance requiring a permit. He had been found guilty in Quincy court and fined $10. He appealed.

Appearing as his own counsel, Stevens showed the wording of the complaint was at variance with the wording of the city ordinance.

Mr. Hearst and the Philippines

(Editorial from New York Herald-Tribune, December 18, 1934.)

MR. WILLIAM RANDOLPH HEARST'S open letter deploring the abandonment of the Philippine Islands by the United States deserves to be widely read by all members of Congress. He not only points out the shortsightedness of this policy, but raises the question of what America will do in the event that these islands, after being granted their independence, are occupied by Japan.

Underlying the whole Philippine problem is a simple principle—that the United States must not be forced into a position of responsibility without authority. This should have been the guiding principle of our governmental relations with the islands. It must be our guiding principle if the islands ultimately receive their freedom.

The principle has been ignored in the past. It is in danger of being ignored in the future. We have been responsible for the Philippine Islands since 1899. We have allowed our authority over these islands to be steadily weakened. Unless Congress changes its mind we shall be responsible for the islands until 1944.

If Japan has her way, our ability to exercise this responsibility will be curtailed during this period. By our own act we are reducing our authority over the islands below the least acceptable minimum of power. If the Japanese succeed in creating a situation in which our naval strength in the Western Pacific is still further reduced, it will be even more difficult to defend the islands.

But an even greater danger lies ahead. This is that our sentimentalists will force us into a position of responsibility for the Philippines after they have obtained their independence. They may demand that we guarantee the independence of the islands, or that we join in a treaty neutralizing them. Such a course would, of course, have the hearty indorsement of the islanders. But it would be inacceptable for us in that it would make us the trustees for a nation over which we would have no control. That nation's own actions, and not America's interests, could involve us in a war.

If responsibility is to be exercised by the United States when the ten-year preparatory period is up, it can only be in exchange for adequate authority. We should have to retain control over the foreign affairs of the nation and over its finances. In exchange we might undertake its defense. Such a solution would not, of course, satisfy the present mood of the Filipinos. Anything short of this could not be satisfactory to the Americans.

If, therefore, a time comes when our withdrawal is a fait accompli and our authority over the islands is completely surrendered, it is essential that we undertake no responsibilities of any sort in behalf of the Filipinos. Even those Americans who, like ourselves, have been and are most vigorously opposed to American withdrawal from the islands, feel that once we are out we must get out entirely. There can be no compromise through which the Filipinos may involve us in a war in which we can have no interest.

Gertrude Lawrence 3 Times Near Death

By International News Service

London, Dec. 20—Three times during the last week doctors feared that Gertrude Lawrence, famous English actress, was near death, it was learned today.

And Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., hovering around the nursing home where his oft-rumored fiancee lies critically ill, refuses to appear on the stage or film set until Miss Lawrence is able to act with him.

Miss Lawrence has been under treatment in the nursing home for several weeks, suffering, it is understood, from a severe mastoid ailment.

GERTRUDE LAWRENCE

Surgeons declare that an operation is imperative, but they cannot risk the knife until the present attacks subside.

"Moonlight Is Silver," the second show in which she and the young American film actor had appeared together, was cancelled two weeks ago.

The reason given at that time was that Miss Lawrence and Fairbanks were busy on a new picture, "Vie de Boheme."

When Miss Lawrence became seriously ill, however, young Fairbanks refused to act with a substitute leading lady, and production of the picture, too, was halted by the British International Studios.

Dutch Transport Alights in Guiana

Amsterdam, Dec. 20 (AP)—The Dutch commercial airplane "Ship F 18," on a "ferrying" flight from The Netherlands, arrived at 7:45 a. m., E. S. T., at its airdrome 30 miles from Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana.

The plane, with four occupants, was guided on the 2250-mile flight across the South Atlantic from the Cape Verde Islands by radio signals from a Dutch submarine stationed in the middle of the south Atlantic.

POLICE SHIFTED IN CAMBRIDGE

In one sweeping order, and in the face of much opposition, Police Chief Timothy F. Leahy of Cambridge declared his new system of "centralization" in effect today. It meant virtual abandonment of two police stations and transfer of 43 officers and men.

The city council fought Chief Leahy's plans to use East Cambridge and North Cambridge stations only as "tape" stations, with a man watching the teletype in each. Mayor Russell backed the scheme.

Among the transfers, Captain Joseph Donahue, head of traffic, is transferred to night desk duty, and Lieutenant Charles Wyman succeeds. In addition Lieutenant Robert Douglas goes to headquarters and nine sergeants and 31 patrolmen are moved.

CHIPMAN FREED IN KIDNAP CASE

Max Chipman, last of six defendants indicted in the kidnaping of Herman Rutstein of Dorchester on Oct. 11, 1932, was acquitted today in a sealed verdict by the superior court jury before which he was tried for alleged conspiracy to kidnap.

The acquittal cleaned up the Rutstein kidnaping case, with four men convicted and two cleared, the other man acquitted being Benjamin Swartz, former partner of Chipman in various enterprises.

Now serving sentences of 17 to 25 years in state prison are Max Shector, William Harmon, Walter Addison and Morris Cohen.

Rutstein was kidnaped at his home garage in Brinsley street, Dorchester, at dusk in October, 1932, and was taken to Nantasket, although he did not then know the destination. He was kept bound and was beaten and tortured in an attempt to force him into a ransom payment. He was rescued in a raid by police.

2 Engineers Found Negligent in Crash

Clinton, Dec. 20—Special Justice George E. O'Toole, who heard the inquest into the deaths of four railroad employes in the train wreck here November 5 found that Willie J. Moore, engineer of a single train, and Charles S. Winslow, engineer of the first engine on a double freight train were negligent. Both were killed.

He did not find that the unlawful or criminal act of any other contributed to the deaths.

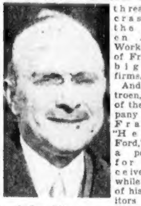
CABINET ACTS TO AID CITROEN IN CRISIS

By Associated Press

Paris, Dec. 20—The cabinet attempted today to avert a major business crisis as a result of the threatened crash of the Citroen Auto Works, one of France's biggest firms.



Andre Citroen

Andre Citroen, head of the company and France's "Henry Ford," filed a petition for a receivership, while one of his creditors asked a court to place the firm in bankruptcy.

Several plans to rescue the company have failed in recent months because Citroen, who made the 2,000,000,000 franc (approximately $130,000,000) company a "one-man" concern, declined to confine himself to manufacturing and allow banks and creditors to handle the finances.

Receivership proceedings were directed only at the parent company, but 13 subsidiaries and six affiliated corporations are largely dependent upon it.

Their widespread indebtedness, estimated at more than half a billion francs for the parent company alone, it was feared, would cause the collapse of scores of other houses unless the government arranges for refinancing.

If the factories close, more than 20,000 men will be added to the unemployed, which December 8 reached the record figure in this country 384,841, an increase of 28,991 in a month.

French agents of a United States concern, the American Wood Rim Company, instituted the bankruptcy proceedings. Citroen discussed the situation with Premier Flandin and the cabinet held a lengthy session on the problem today.

Sources familiar with Citroen affairs said the bankruptcy petition was a move to force the government's hand. It may be withdrawn after filing.

Hyde Park Man's Jaw 'Freezes'

James A. Hazlett, 55, of Webster street, Hyde Park, had better keep interested in things, because if he gets bored it may mean a trip to City Hospital.

He's been there once already, and all because he yawned. When Mr. Hazlett yawns he means it. He's probably the only man in the world who yawns vigorously.

He opened his mouth so wide that it slipped out of joint and his face "froze." With mouth wide open he walked into City Hospital and was fixed up. Immediately it happened again. It was again fixed and the patient was told to keep his mouth shut.

Dispute on Terms Halts Steel Peace

Washington, Dec. 20 (US)—President Roosevelt said here the only obstacle to agreement on a six months' truce for the steel industry is a dispute over the wording of the peace formula.

Labor officials were publicly silent on the President's explanation, but let it be known they considered important issues were at stake.

Jungle Silence Hides Col. Fawcett's Fate

This is the sixth in a daily series of articles based on the mystery of missing persons.

By WIN BROOKS

This is not the story of one missing man, but of three.

On a scientific expedition hailed throughout the civilized world, they vanished into the green hell of the Brazilian jungle more than nine years ago.

They were Colonel P. H. Fawcett, distinguished British explorer, his son, John, who was 21, and Raleigh Rimell, 23, another Englishman who had moved to Los Angeles.

LOST WHITE RACE

Fawcett had spent nearly 14 years in exploration of the wilds of Brazil. He went back convinced he would find hidden on the south watershed of the Amazon river a lost city where a majestic civilization, founded by an unknown white race, flourished 10,000 years ago.

This lost civilization, antedating Egypt, held the secret of a mysterious light derived from knowledge of basic atomic forces; its ancient people knew astronomy and mathematics. So Fawcett believed.

Fawcett said goodbye to his wife, Nina, and his daughter, told them not to worry if they did not hear from him for two years or more, and set forth.

John Fawcett P. H. Fawcett

UNEXPLORED TERRAIN

The party sailed from New York for Rio in January, 1925, and pushed on to the Paraguay and to Cuyaba in the Matto Grosso state on the edge of the two million square miles of unexplored terrain.

On May 29, 1925, from Dead Horse Camp beyond Cuyaba, he wrote the last letter to reach his wife, but on the day following he sent out word that his guides were turning back and he was about to push on with his son and Rimell. That was the end of contact.

Then the world waited as, in the mid-19th century it awaited word from the lost Livingston on another continent.

The years stretched toward three when Roger Courteville, Brazilian engineer, came out of the wilderness to Rio to report he had found the three explorers living the lives of native farmers in the jungle near the River of Doubt, made famous by Theodore Roosevelt. He said they had renounced all civilization.

DOUBTED TALES

Rimell's mother, Mrs. Elsie Rimell, of Los Angeles, said Courteville lied. So did Francis Gow-Smith, noted American explorer who knew the region.

In February, 1928, a Brazilian police official had word that appeared to substantiate Courteville's claim.

A month later Matto Grosso officials heard the three were captives of the Indians at the head of the Dasmortes river.

In August of the same year, an expedition of five white men led by Commander George M. Dyott on Fawcett's trail reported evidence that the three men were slain by Indians in July, 1925, a short time after they penetrated the jungle. His informant promised to show Dyott the graves, but never did.

CAPTIVE OF INDIANS

In March, 1932, Stephan Rattin, a Swiss trapper and explorer, said he had seen Colonel Fawcett, alone, a captive of Indians in a native jungle. He subsequently organized an expedition of search that proved fruitless.

Neville Priestly, Captain Alfred Norris and others led similar expeditions. The jungle threw them back empty handed, some convinced of Fawcett's death, others convinced he lives.

Only last October an army man who said he met Fawcett in the jungle four years ago revealed the reason why he believes the explorer renounced the world. Lieutenant H. A. Truchi said "Leprosy."

Fawcett's wife believes he lives and says she has been in communication with him by means of mental telepathy. The messages she gets say: "All is well."

Taxi Loses Tank, Runs Without It

Like the camel which goes so far without water, a taxi went ten miles before it stopped after dropping its gas tank off in Scollay square.

The tank clattered to the street and rolled to the gutter but the cab driver didn't notice. An hour later a frantic call to police headquarters told police that the driver

POLE TOPPLES MAN UNHURT

Usually a man in an automobile hits the pole; the pole doesn't come out and hit the car.

Usually when the pole carries high voltage electric wires the man in the car is burned or electrocuted.

In Chard street, East Weymouth, today, Chester Halnan, Jr., of Broad street, Weymouth, was the odd man both ways.

A pole, which broke into six pieces, according to police, toppled over just as Halnan was driving through on his way to work.

Halnan's car was damaged, but he said while his back was strained, no electric current had touched him.

Hardly had all this happened when William Shields, another autoist, came from another direction, and drove into the tangle. He wasn't hurt either.

Police said the night's storm had weakened the offending pole.

PRESIDENT O. K. ON FUND GROUP

By Associated Press

Washington, Dec. 20—President Roosevelt accepted with thanks the services of a commission to administer funds to be collected at the President's birthday ball celebrations January 30.

The commission, to be headed by Henry L. Doherty and Jeremiah Milbank of New York, will administer the 30 per cent of the funds to be devoted to infantile paralysis research. The other 70 per cent, it was announced, will remain in the various communities to aid victims.

The other members of the commission are: Dr. Paul De Kruif of Pennsylvania, secretary; Edward B. Harkness of New York, treasurer; Edsel B. Ford of Detroit, Felix Warburg of New York, Lessing Rosenwald of Chicago, Senator Couzens of Michigan, and John S. Burke, Mrs. Nicholas Brady and Raymond S. Fosdick, all of New York.

Child Stifled, Dies

Worcester, Dec. 20—Dawn Barber, 6, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Don Barber, was found suffocated in her bedroom from what police said was depletion of the air by a portable heater.

LINDY KIDNAP CLUE TRAILED IN MAINE

Portland, Me., Dec. 20—Along three fronts in this state today, investigators were at work to determine value of certain developments that have arisen in connection with the Lindbergh kidnaping.

Most important of the three, anl with possibly the greatest bearing on the impending trial in New Jersey of Richard Bruno Hauptmann, was the search for clues leading to John Lister, formerly of Bingham.

Lister, whose estranged wife, Mrs. Dorothy Lister, now lives in Moscow, disappeared after leaving her a note that he was "going on a trip around the world." Lister's brother, Earl, is a guide, and he took Hauptmann on a hunting trip eight months after the Lindbergh kidnaping.

CASH SAID PLENTIFUL

It was said that John Lister had persuaded Hauptmann to come to Bingham for the vacation and that John himself came home at the time.

According to witnesses being interviewed, both Hauptmann and Lister were "plentifully" supplied with money.

Following the story of Ellis Sanborn of Bridgton, that he had been approached and asked to enlist in a kidnaping by a man he identified as Isador Fisch, now dead, Edward J. Reilly of New York, the Hauptmann defense counsel indicated that he might call Sanborn as a witness.

Fisch, as is known, is the man that Hauptmann says left him the Lindbergh ransom money for possession of which Hauptmann was first arrested.

STORY BARES OFFER

According to Sanborn's story, a transcript of which has been forwarded to Reilly, the aproach by Fisch was in 1932 and Sanborn was offered part of $100,000 to engage in a kidnaping that involved a "wealthy young woman."

Whether or not there was a connection, it was disclosed that the wife of a well-to-do Portland attorney had been under close guard against kidnaping for two months in the summer of 1933. The woman herself didn't know about it.

It was said by Attorney Ralph M. Ingalls, former county prosecutor, that the plotter in this case was described in a fashion that checked with descriptions of Fisch.

NEW ARRESTS IN HIJACK NEAR

Arrest of four men who allegedly conspired with Barney Banks, Boston truckman, in the hijacking of $30,000 worth of furs and other merchandise from a truck he was driving will be made before nightfall, Springfield police said today.

Banks pleaded not guilty in Springfield Court today to a charge of larceny and conspiracy and was held in $10,000 bail for the grand jury.

Yesterday police said he named the four men involved in the theft. Banks told police that the actual robbery occurred in Agawam. Previously he said the truck was hijacked in Boston.

V. F. W. Post Plans Christmas Party

A Christmas party—tree and all—is to be staged for thec hildren of needy members of Second Division Post 2045, V. F. W., at the post's quarters, 23 Phillips street, Sunday afternoon, according to an announcement made today by Robert W. Robertson, commander. There will be a real Santa Claus with gifts and entertainmentf or the youngsters.

Age? Pooh!

At 99, Abraham Greenburg, above, retired Chicago banker, says the way to live to be 100—and happy—is to eat plenty of raw oysters, black coffee and Welsh rarebit: dine at midnight, if it suits you, and break as many doctors' rules as possible.

TROOPS PATROL MOB SCENE

By Associated Press

Shelbyville, Tenn., Dec. 20—Six hundred national guardsmen marched into town today after disorders of the past 24 hours, in which the courthouse was burned and two men were killed in a racial outbreak.

The troops were ordered here by Governor Hill McAllister after a mob ran wild yesterday on the scent of a lynching, fighting to carry off a Negro whose trial on a charge of attacking a young white girl was interrupted as the sullen, raging group stormed the courthouse.

Asked if he would declare martial law, Adjutant-General J. H. Ballew replied:

"Nothing like that. We've got 600 men here, and we're going to look around and see what the situation is before making any plans."

Dawn brought a dismal sight to Shelbyville, its courthouse was a hulk of scorched bricks and a litter of debris covered the square, the scene of yesterday's battle to seize E. K. Harris, the Negro on trial. A score was wounded in the fight.

The list of dead and wounded was unchanged during the night, and two men earlier pronounced dying were reported "resting easily" in a hospital.

The dead were Raleigh Edwards, 30, who was wounded in Wednesday's second mob attack, and an unidentified man.

The latter, according to Dr. James L. Morton, hospital superintendent, was pronounced dead after the shootings, but was removed before identification could be made.

When the body could not be found at any funeral establishment, the opinion was that the victim was an out of the county resident and had been taken home.

There was quiet throughout the early morning hours.

The courthouse was fired last night after the mob had been repulsed earlier in its efforts to gain entrance and seize Harris.

TESTIMONY IN FOFO SUIT ENDS

That aura of intense emotion encompassing Pemberton square courthouse during the past few days was lightened today when Judge Charles L. Carr, in municipal court, took under advisement the $50,000 damage suit of Mme. Fofo Lauka, Greek tragedienne.

Mme. Lauka seeks reparation for alleged damages sustained to her reputation as an artiste when her photograph was displayed in the midst of burlesque cuties in the lobby of the Park Theater.

Her suit is against the Park Entertainment, Inc.

JOHNSON'S WAR INCOME PROBED

By Associated Press.

Washington, Dec. 20—The Senate munitions committee said today it had under scrutiny the wartime income tax returns of Hugh S. Johnson, the late Alexander Legge, Joseph F. Guffey, senator-elect from Pennsylvania and others who held high positions during the conflict.

Meanwhile, it continued an inquiry into the destruction of income tax returns of high wartime governmental officials, with Senator Clark (D.) of Missouri saying there was "nothing out of the ordinary" about the procedure.

Clark explained it was not the bureau's practice in any case to destroy returns about which there might be further dispute.

"Only those returns not in controversy and not likely to be in controversy are destroyed," the senator added.

His statement was caused by evidence that the 1918 and 1919 returns of Bernard M. Baruch, chairman of the War Industries Board, had been destroyed, but the return for 1917 was still on file.

SANTA TO FLY TO LIGHTHOUSES

Once more playing the role of aerial Santa Claus, Captain William E. Wincapaw will fly over 81 lighthouses and coast guard stations next Monday, dropping Christmas bundles and copies of the Boston Evening American to the guardians of these isolated posts.

The annual trip will be made in the large LaTouraine monoplane, sponsored by the W. S. Quinby Company of 291 Atlantic avenue, distributors of LaTouraine tea and coffee.

Adriel U. Bird, president of the Quinby company, will accompany Captain Wincapaw and assist in distributing the bundles, each to include a copy of Saturday's Boston Evening American.

"The Boston American was very much enjoyed last year," officials said today in announcing the annual flight.

Watches, Diamonds Seized by Police

Diamond rings and wrist watches, valued at $3000, and a shotgun were seized today, Chief of Police John Connors of Maynard alleges, in the home of George Dirga, arrested Tuesday for the alleged armed robbery of trucks and jewelry stores in Bridgeport, Ct., a week ago.

Dirga was taken to Bridgeport from Maynard yesterday. Enroute, police say, he attempted to end his life with a screwdriver.

LETTERS PILE UP AS NEED FOR BASKETS GROWS

Tired after your Christmas shopping expedition? Weary after hours in thronged streets and crowded stores? Fagged after racking your brain for gift ideas for uncles and aunts and second cousins?

Want a lift?

Take out your check book or your pocket book and send your contribution to the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund. Think of the hungry ones and the hopeless ones for whom you are providing a Merry Christmas. If that does not make you feel better, what can?

And your gift is really needed. With the weather turning bad and increasing the misery of Greater Boston's unfortunates, appeals for aid are pouring in at such a rate that the Basket Editor and his assistants today were forced to allow letters to pile up—unopened.

YOUR HELP NEEDED

But they hope to open every last one of those letters before Christmas. They hope to be able to investigate each appeal that comes to them. And they hope to be able to distribute baskets to all those that are really in need of them. To do that, your help is wanted. It's a big job this year and there just can't be too many contributions.

One striking thing about this year's appeals is the large number of families that are asking for help for the first time. Somehow they have managed to weather almost five years of depression and hardship, but now, on the eve of Christmas, they are at their wits' end. Here is a sample:

"We never got a basket before. We never asked for one. This is the first time.

BEHIND ON RENT

"My husband has not worked for six years, and I have five small sons. They have no shoes and no clothes. I cannot send them to school. Now my husband works for the ERA. Sometimes he gets $9 and sometimes he gets $12. But what can a family of seven persons do with $12 a week? I owe my landlord 18 months' rent and he threatens to throw us out.

"So please do send us a basket for Christmas. We do want to have a happy Christmas. It was terrible last year. I don't want the little ones to go hungry this Christmas Day."

Threatened with eviction on the verge of the holidays! Not even sure that she will have a kitchen in which to prepare a basket full of food! And yet this mother wants her little ones to have a happy Christmas.

"Last year was so terrible!"

Don't you want to help? Help her and hundreds and hundreds like her? Of course you do, but it's one of those things that has just slipped your mind. So please let us remind you that the time is growing short—just five more days to Christmas.

HIGH AND LOW

That the Basket Fund is receiving contributions from high and low is indicated by two gifts that came today. The first was a dollar from Henry J. Fontaine, a patient in the Bedford Veterans Hospital. The other was $25 from Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield. Here is his letter:

"It is a pleasure for me to enclose my check for $25 for your Christmas Basket Fund and to express the wish that your meritorious work in this field may be even more successful in the Christmas season of 1934 than it has been in preceding years.

"May I take this opportunity to extend to all the recipients of your bounty the greetings of the City of Boston and my best wishes for a happy Christmas."

Please send your gift—big or small—to the Christmas Basket Fund, 294 Devonshire street, Boston.

More Needy Appeal for Christmas Aid

Letter after letter pours in on the Boston Evening American Basket Fund. Hardly a writer asks assistance for himself; it is for the children that destitute fathers and mothers ask a little Christmas joy.

Here are a few of the latest appeals. In view of need like this, can YOU put off any longer making that contribution to the Basket Fund?

CASE 65

I hope you won't disappoint us this year. I need a basket more now than I did last year. I have four children now instead of three and I am working. Last year I was on the welfare and received $12 a week and fuel. Now I receive $12.08 washing dishes in a lunch room and have to buy my fuel.

There is one more mouth to feed so you see there will be no Christmas dinner for my children. We have had to move to a cheaper house so that there would be a dollar more for food.

The older children have forgotten what milk tastes like. And there are many days when the two-year-old doesn't have it. If you can spare a basket it will be appreciated very much.

This father lives in Roxbury. Anyone who wishes to help him may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 65.

CASE 66

I am a young man with a wife and a child and my wife expects another baby and is very ill from lack of nourishment. I put off writing this letter thinking I'd be able to find work and be able to buy my own Christmas dinner but now with Christmas drawing nearer and no work to be found I have to appeal to you for some help.

I'm getting $12 a week, but for the past two weeks have gotten only $8. When carfare and money for the baby's milk is taken out, there is barely enough for the other necessities. I have been ill myself because of insufficient clothing and holes in my shoes. I have to put cardboard in my shoes as I can't afford to have them tapped.

Christmas will be a bitter day for us if you don't help us. We shall be grateful.

This father lives in Roxbury. Anyone who wishes to help him may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for case No. 66.

CASE 67

I am writing to ask you if there is any possible way you could help my four boys, ranging from six to ten years, this Christmas.

This is the first time I have ever written to you. My husband is on the welfare, and with the money he receives we can barely pay rent and light and buy very little food. I am a victim of asthma for the past 25 years, and there are plenty of days that I cannot go to the hospital for treatment as I do not have the carfare.

Hoping that next Christmas I may be able to help someone else.

This mother lives in Brighton. Anyone wishing to help her may do so by calling the Christmas Basket Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for case No. 67.

MORE ACTS JOIN FUND PARTY

More and more acts were added today to the program for Sunday night's big show at Cocoanut Grove—the biggest and final Sunday night party in aid of the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund.

At the hands of no less than eight masters of ceremony, including former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald, the show promises to be one of the most outstanding events in years.

To acts from the various theaters and night clubs, as well as from radio studios, was added today the group of Mary V. Corbett dancers; Bette Brooks, singer, and Countess Rozanska of the American Legion Glee Club.

FLOOR SHOW STARS

Each master of ceremonies will introduce two or three of the acts. Charlie Walke will introduce the regular Cocoanut Grove floor show.

Charlie Hector will present the acts from Loew's Orpheum. Ranny Weeks will introduce Vicki Joyce and acts from the RKO Keith's and the merry maestro, Jacques Renard, will be master of ceremonies when the celebrities from the legitimate theaters arrive.

Newcomb F. Thompson, of the Boston Evening American, known to radio-dialers as "N. F. T.," will present N. F. T.'s Radio unit consisting of: Andy Jacobson, saxophonist; Russell Dorr, Billy Payne, Adrian O'Brien, Ethel Grenier, Nick Parkyakakas, the Kings of the Ivories, little Billy McNamara, seven, of Roxbury and his brother, Paul, four, and others.

DANCING UNTIL 2

George MacKinnon will "emcee" acts from the Metropolitan Theater.

Dinner will be served at 8 o'clock and the show will run from 10 until midnight. Until 2 a. m. there will be dancing—and all for $2.50 a person.

But Boston organizations are not lying idle during the wait for the big Sunday night show. Tonight the Greater Boston Chapter, No. 44 Disabled American Veterans of the World War, will hold its December bridge and whist party with members of the auxiliary.

On Saturday night, there will be another Christmas basket party at the Hotel Avery, under the direction of James Salas, manager of the Cameo Room.

GLOOM

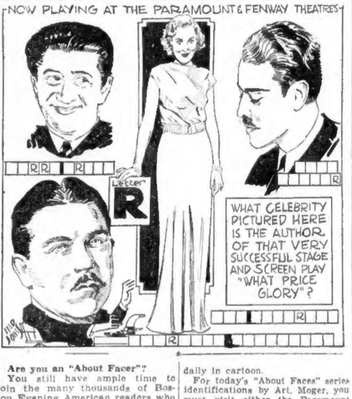
New Haven, Dec. 20—A torrential downpour of rain added gloom to the sad scene at the Grove street cemetery as Mrs. Alice Graham Sumner Camp was buried beside Walter Camp of football fame, her husband.

Chicago Socialite Sued By Artist

Chicago, Dec. 20 (US)—Eames MacVeagh, scion of a famed Chicago family and vestryman at fashionable St. James Episcopal Church, is being sued for failing to make monthly payments for the support of Louise Hagen, former Chicago artist.

In a suit filed in Municipal Court, Miss Hagen charges that on January 18, 1930, MacVeagh agreed to contribute $350 monthly for two years, then $250 a month for the rest of her life. She asserts the payments stopped in March of this year, and that she is owed $2500.

ABOUT FACES by ART. MOGER



NOW PLAYING AT THE PARAMOUNT & FENWAY THEATRES

WHAT CELEBRITY PICTURED HERE IS THE AUTHOR OF THAT VERY SUCCESSFUL STAGE AND SCREEN PLAY "WHAT PRICE GLORY"?

Are you an "About Facer"?

You still have ample time to join the many thousands of Boston Evening American readers who have shared in the weekly $25 in cash awards by familiarizing themselves with their favorite screen and stage stars, as they are drawn daily in cartoon.

For today's "About Faces" series identifications by Art. Moger, you must visit either the Paramount or Fenway theaters. At these two favorite Boston houses of entertainment you will view "The First World War," edited by one of today's celebrities. The remaining three performers are appearing in "Love Time," a thrilling and colorful screen romance.

With these clues it should be easy for you to win at least one of the many cash prizes as offered by the Boston Evening American. Here's all you have to do:

Beneath each drawing you will find a block of squares. These squares equal the number of letters in the names of the celebrities that are drawn. Use the letter clue, "R," as a guide and mail your entire week's solutions to: The About Faces Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston, Mass.

Cash prizes await you, NOW!

SNOW TRAIN

BOSTON AND MAINE

'beacon hill'

By Betty Alden

SANTA CLAUS will have to carry his pack to Washington to fill the stockings of several of Boston society's little tots who will be visiting in the nation's capital with their parents . . . On Saturday little Sarah Roosevelt of Brookline will arrive at the White House with her daddy and mother, Mr. and Mrs. James Roosevelt, to hang her stocking beside those of Sistie and Buzzie Dall in one of the great living rooms of the presidential mansion . . .

BEATRICE PHILLIPS

On the Thursday after Christmas, Mrs. Roosevelt will entertain a party of little tots at the first of a series of Christmas parties in the White House . . . a tinsel-laden tree, toys to thrill the hearts of the youthful guests and a marionette show will be features of the entertainment . . .

* * *

Fete at Phillips Home

WHILE HE IS HOVERING over the roof of the nation's dignitaries, Santa will be looking for the chimney of the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. Ze Barney Phillips, who will entertain their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Guido Perera of Beacon Hill and their little son, for the holidays . . . Dr. Phillips is chaplain of the United States Senate . . .

Miss Beatrice Phillips, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Phillips of Boston and North Beverly, will give a party on New Year's Eve at her parents' Washington residence for Miss Jean Martineau . . . Boston's loss is Washington's gain while the Phillips reside in the Capital . . .

* * *

Two Debutantes to Be Entertained

MARY MORISON'S DARK BEAUTY will be enhanced this evening by bands of soft red velvet ribbon on the decolletage of her white moire, bouffant gown, when she is feted with "Dikki" Fuller at a supper dance at Mrs. Guy Currier's sumptuous Beacon Hill residence . . . Mary's gown is the one in which she was presented to society a week or so ago at her parents' Louisburg square home . . . it so charmed the tea guests on that occasion that she will probably cause havoc in the hearts of the ushers with whom she will dine at Mr. and Mrs. Fuller's before the dance tonight . . .

Miss Fuller's gown of lustrous white satin will be a foil for her expressive brown eyes and gay personality . . .

For the ushers' dinner the Fullers' beautiful portrait-hung dining room will be festive with glistening silver, mellow candle light and bright flowers with covers laid for about 30 close friends of the two debs . . . In the gay company will be Hope Blanchard, dark-eyed Ruth Edmands, Molly Bowditch, Mrs. E. Sohier Welch's attractive debutante daughter, Marie Stevenson, who is outstanding because of her bright red hair . . . Also Evelyn Hassman who was a pourer at Mary Fuller's tea last month, Martha Endicott, Mary Andrews, Peggy Hardwick, Peggy Burnett, Nancy Morison and Lydia Fuller . . . The other Morison girls will not be home in time to attend this holiday party in honor of the debutante of the household . . . Mr. and Mrs. Horace Morison and Mr. and Mrs. Alvan Fuller will also be in the party . . .

Head ushering when the guests begin to arrive at Mrs. Currier's will be Mason Hammond, with the assistance of Eugene O'Dunne, George Lauriat, Benjamin Townsend, Renouf Russell, Gaspar G. Bacon, Jr., James A. Ford, Woods McCahill, Haswell Clarke, T. Ferguson Locke, Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr., Jay Williams, Richard Sidney and George Bottomley . . .

Open House on Christmas Eve

IN KEEPING WITH THEIR ANNUAL custom Mr. and Mrs. Horace Morison will welcome their friends at open house on Christmas Eve . . . their house in Louisburg Square is one of the first to be gaily decked with greens and other harbingers of the holiday season . . . Garlands of fruit arranged over a lattice of green with lacy pines all around give a festive air to the little terraced garden adjoining their drawing room and the interior of the house is festooned with garlands of pine and fruit . . .

Further up on the Hill candles in the windows of the Mt. Vernon street apartment where Mr. and Mrs. Chester B. Humphrey live will bid their friends to stop for a cup of cheer . . .

The latch string will be out at Mr. Walter Kilham's where he and his family will greet many of their friends on this magic evening . . . and the spirit of goodwill will preside at the punch table of Mr. and Mrs. E. Sohier Welch, whose Louisburg square mansion has been the scene of many neighborly gatherings while carols echo in the streets below . . .

Debutantes as Salesgirls for Charity

THIS AFTERNOON the staid dwellings of Back Bay and Beacon Hill witnessed with some surprise the unusual spectacle of Boston debutantes ringing doorbells and selling Christmas greens from house to house. This debutante activity marked the occasion of the 18th annual Little House green sale, for the benefit of the Little House, a settlement house in South Boston, which had this year an enrollment of 741, made up of 12 different nationalities.

Among those selling were Miss Susanne Crocker, Miss Ellen Grau, Miss Alice Spaulding, Miss Mary Derby, Miss Cora Peabody, Miss Mary Bryant, Miss Maria Ducey, Miss Helen Foster, Miss Molly Bowditch, Miss Louise Harding, Miss Frances Holmes, Miss Barbara McKissock and Miss Susan Dalton.

The sale is under the management of Mrs. Leavitt C. Parsons, who will be assisted at the shop at 30 Charles street, by Miss Dorothy Powning, Mrs. Thomas H. Grey, Jr., Miss Martha Wigglesworth, Miss Mary Curtis, 2nd, Miss Nancy Brigham, Mrs. Stephen Paine, Mrs. John Adie, Mrs. Andrew N. Winslow, Jr., Mrs. T. Barnet Plimpton, Mrs. Henry S. Rogerson, Mrs. Reginald Nash, and Mrs. Norris F. LaCroix.

Society Notes

MR. AND MRS. PRESTON WRIGHT of Cincinnati, accompanied by the little Miss Marjorie Harrison, Mrs. Wright's daughter, will come East and spend New Year's with Mrs. Wright's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Crane Shepard, in Boston.

MR. AND MRS. GEORGE PEABODY GARDNER, JR., of Brookline were week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Maurice Congdon at the Congdon home on Cooke street, Providence, R. I. Mrs. Congdon, who is Mrs. Gardner's sister, had several interesting informal luncheons and dinners.

Stokowski, Board Near Compromise

Philadelphia, Dec. 20 (US)—A tentative compromise between Leopold Stokowski and the board of directors of the Philadelphia orchestra was reached here.

Following a three-hour "peace conference" the board issued a statement indicating a willingness to "study and investigate the size and personnel of the board," one of the chief points at issue. Stokowski refused early in the month to renew his contract as conductor of the orchestra. The contract expires December 26.

MR. GRAFTON WINTHROP MINOT of Boston, music lover and social registerite, is among the box holders for the forthcoming season at the Metropolitan Opera House in New York city. He has engaged box number 32 for the opening night, odd Mondays and odd Saturday matinees.

Miss de Rosset Is Hostess for Debutante

NOTEWORTHY AMONG the many pre-nuptual parties and entertainments given for Miss Alma Bird, who is to become Mrs. Samuel Bartow on New Year's Day, was the tea and shower given her yesterday afternoon, by Miss Arsene de Rosset, a sister debutante.

Many of Miss Bird's friends gathered at the de Rosset home in Brookline and literally snowed her under with a shower of canned goods. Miss Martha Chapin, Miss Lansdale Watson, Miss Louise Howe, Miss Betty Cram, Miss Anne Torbert, Miss Frances McElwain and Mrs. Francis H. Gleason (Mary McElwain) all contributed to the future Bartow larder.

Dinner Party

Miss Dorothea "Dodo" Dean is giving a dinner party for the prospective bride and groom this coming Saturday evening.

Miss Alma Bird, the bride-to-be, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Bird of 11 West Cedar street and Cohasset. The bridegroom, Mr. Samuel Bartow, is the son of Rev. and Mrs. Howard Bartow of Quincy. The wedding ceremony will be performed in Emmanuel Church at 4 o'clock on New Year's Day. The Rev. Mr. Bartow, father of the bridegroom, and Dr. Phillips E. Osgood, rector of Emmanuel, will officiate. After the ceremony there will be a small reception at the Ritz-Carlton.

In Bridal Party

Miss Mary Elizabeth Bird will be her sister's maid of honor and the four bridesmaids will be Mrs. James Dean, Jr., Mrs. Francis H. Gleason, Miss Dorothea Dean and Miss Arsene de Rosset. Little Cynthia Bacon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Bartlett Bacon, whose mother, the former Mary Bartow, is the groom's sister, will be the flower girl at her uncle's wedding.

Mr. Howard Bartow, Jr., will be his brother's best man and the ushers will be Mr. Paul P. Bird, Jr., Mr. James Dean, Jr., Mr. John Mason, Mr. John H. Dean, Mr. Frank M. Bremer and Mr. Alexander Cochrane.

Mrs. Burnham Aids at Tea

MRS. ADDISON C. BURNHAM of Newton Center, Mrs. Henry D. Tudor of Cambridge and Baroness Kurt von Tippleskirch of Newton Center, poured at the tea which was given this afternoon in the Town Room at 3 Joy street, by the housing committee of the Massachusetts Civic League in honor of Charles A. Birmingham, regional director; John F. Malley, state director; James E. Gibbons, associate director, and members of the state board of housing.

Assisting the pourers at this tea will be Mrs. Addison C. Burnham, Jr., of Lincoln, and Mrs. Edward Marshall of Winchester.

FOUR ARE HELD IN DEATH OF OFFICER

Syracuse, N. Y., Dec. 20—Four persons, including three women, one of whom said she was Anna Weber, 41, of Cambridge, Mass., were brought here today from Erie, Pa., to be questioned about a Syracuse fur robbery and the murder of a Chicago policeman.

The two other women gave the names of Lillian Weber, 33, of New York and Evelyn Nolan, 37, of Cleveland, O. Anthony Formato, 37, husband of a woman held in the Chicago killing, was the fourth suspect. All were arrested in Erie for Syracuse authorities.

TAPPED PHONE

Although primarily the four were wanted in conection with the fur robbery, Assistant District Attorney H. B. Walsh furnished a sensation when he said today:

"New York police, working under Inspector McDermott, uncovered the slaying connection when they tapped the telephone of men under arrest in New York on suspicion of being "fences" for the fur gang."

Prosecutor Walsh would not tell any more about the Chicago policeman's murder, but it was learned that he was slain during a fur robbery in that city.

AFRAID SHE'D SQUEAL

According to information from New York, a man in that city, under surveillance, telephoned to Buffalo and said:

"Get my wife out of jail in Syracuse if you have to shoot her out. I'm afraid she'll squeal about the murder."

The woman held here, hitherto to the arrivals today from Erie, is booked under the name of Althea Burns, 28, of Philadelphia.

TODAY

ligently planning to utilize for public welfare the intelligence of young girls, and make useful, energy and wealth that had been wasted.

Throughout all her life, Mrs. Rumsey was intelligently and usefully interested in public affairs, an active, tireless worker. The unfortunate accident that caused her death means the loss of an earnest worker in many useful directions and the loss of a good example set before others, by a woman of intelligence and wealth.

Commissioner MacCormick, head of New York city's prison system, an ultra-modern penologist, says many prisoners are so ugly their faces discourage them, keep them back in the world. He would establish a criminal face-beautifying and face-lifting department, and change ugly, repulsive faces into faces that might find jobs.

A kind heart prompts the suggestion, assuming that Commissioner MacCormick really made it.

On the other hand, it might enable some criminals with their new faces to start a new and safer career of crime. Dillinger tried to change his face.

We really live and learn. A few years ago when you mentioned the dole, "best minds" yelled "shocking," and added: "What, would you have proud Americans made objects of charity? Would you hand out vile charity cash to a noble American citizen out of a job? Perish the thought."

"Best minds" have changed their view, watching the results of jobs artificially created, and not taken seriously by those hired. Many intelligent men have come to the conclusion that the British dole idea, enough cash to keep a man or family from suffering, but not enough to keep him from taking interest in a job, is what the situation calls for.

A single man had a job. It was given to a man with a wife and several children. The employer said, "I think I can get you another job." "No, thanks," said the man. "I am going on the dole, work four short days a week, get rent money and about the same wages, and have time to look around."

Malden Wards Increased to Eight

Malden's seven wards will be increased to eight, the first increase in nearly 50 years as a city. The city government has approved the plan to establish the easterly section of the city as Ward 8. The plan now awaits legislative approval.

PAPER PRICE WAR ENDED

By Universal Service

Montreal, Dec. 20—The case of James McLaren Company, Ltd., which the American Newspaper Publishers Association said had agreed to sell 30,000,000 tons of newsprint to a United States publisher at a price below $42.50 a ton for the first quarter of 1935, has been settled, Premier L. A. Taschereau of Quebec said today.

Regarding the threat of the publishers that they will look elsewhere for newsprint if the Canadian government continues pressure to stabilize the 1935 newsprint price at a higher level, Premier Taschereau said he was unconcerned, adding that the United States cannot do without Canadian newsprint.

The premier declared it amusing that United States publishers should bemoan government intervention in Canadian industry to protect its workers, all contracts in that country being subjected to governmental intervention through the NRA.

Everett Dealers Vote Tavern Plan

Everett liquor dealers have ended the controversy over the Sunday closing problem by voting in favor of the adoption of taverns. John J. Rocco, treasurer of the association, announced today.

PRANKISH THIEVES ROB STOREKEEPERS

Robberies in Brighton and Waltham gave thieves a chance to show their playful streaks at their victims' expense.

His ice chest served as lockup for Philip Cacciatore, 48, Waltham butcher, with a store on Newton street. Two armed men drove him at gunpoint into the meat cooler and escaped in a car with $35.

Abraham Karras, grocer, on Commonwealth avenue, Brighton, lost $45 to two gunmen. The holdup men pinned him down, robbed him and placed a full case of fresh eggs on top of him so he would not pursue them when they escaped.

Life Sentences for 4 Kidnapers

Miami, Fla., Dec. 20 (US)—In one of the speediest recorded dispositions of a kidnaping case, four men were convicted of kidnaping for ransom here and sentenced to life imprisonment.

The quartet, led by Sam Celler, bus driver of Bayonne, N. J., had pleaded guilty to kidnaping Dr. Santiago Claret, former Cuban publisher, from his motor car here ten days ago, and forcing him to write a $16,000 check.

OLD OVERHOLT

is back again!

IT TOOK great forbearance to do it—but we watched four long years come and go

—let the months drag slowly past after this particular lot of Old Overholt reached official bonding age

—deliberately waited until the last warmth of an extra summer had given its extra richness and flavor to the precious contents of those stout oak casks

—and only then was this famed Pennsylvania Rye whiskey bottled-in-bond and sealed with the Government stamp which certifies its age.

You will read the story in these laconic words, "Made — Spring 1930"—"Bottled Fall 1934" on the revenue stamp.

But what a story these six words tell—and what a gift this patience has prepared for you!

Old Overholt whiskey—distilled with the same skill that has given it distinction these hundred and twenty-four years!

Isn't that a suggestion for some of the favored names on your Christmas shopping list?

ALINE McMAHON AND GUY KIBBEE TO BE CO-STARRED AGAIN ON SCREEN

Lights and Shadows

By George Holland

Maintaining the excellence of its fore-runners in Walter Hampden's repertory, "Hamlet" was presented by the actor-manager and his company last night at the Colonial theater. Mr. Hampden gave his splendid conception, long familiar to Boston, of Shakespeare's most famous character. Eleanor Goodrich, as Ophelia, was very good. With the performance of "Macbeth" tonight, Mr. Hampden finishes with the first performances of his repertoire. "Richard III" will be given Friday; "Hamlet" will be done again at the Saturday matinee, and the Hampden Company will conclude its week's engagement Saturday night with "Richelieu," the vehicle for the star which began the engagement.

The famous D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, from the Savoy theater, London, has announced the repertory for the Boston engagement of four weeks which is scheduled to begin on Monday, January 14. "The Gondoliers," last opera written by Gilbert and Sullivan, has been selected as the opening attraction. "The Gondoliers" will be repeated Tuesday, and at Wednesday matinee and evening performances. On Thursday of the first week, "Iolanthe" will be given, and will be played through the Saturday night performance.

* * *

For the first half of the second week, "The Pirates of Penzance" and "Trial by Jury," a double bill, will be presented.

"The Yeomen of the Guard" will play Thursday, Friday and Saturday of the second week. "The Mikado" has been deferred until the third week of the engagement. This famous operetta will be played Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. A single performance of "Princess Ida" is scheduled for Thursday, March 3. "Cox and Box" as a curtain-raiser, and "H. M. S. Pinafore" as the lengthier attraction, will be played Friday and Saturday.

* * *

"Patience," "Iolanthe," "The Mikado," and "The Gondoliers" will share the final week at the Colonial. The Gilbert and Sullivan operas will be performed in the Savoy tradition. The New York engagement ended the past Saturday, with three extensions of the scheduled run featuring the Savoyards visit to the metropolis.

In listing the Bostonians prominent in the holiday amusements lists, we overlooked Sidney Marion, the noted vaudeville comedian, who was born on Joy street, was a Boston Evening American newsboy when Calvin Coolidge was in the legislature, and who is headlining at Keith's Boston this week. Having once been Mr. Marion's envoy to the press, this was inexcusable. Sid will commute from Providence Friday night to appear at the midnight show at the Park theater—the huge benefit planned by Manager Max Michaels to aid the Christmas Basket Fund and his shoe-fund for poor children.

Universal Also Will Feature Jean Dixon and Hugh O'Connell on Screen

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Motion Picture Editor Universal Service

Copyright 1934 by Universal Service

Los Angeles, Dec. 20—The dear old box office, the barometer that decides the fate of our stars, has taken a turn in favor of teams. Aline McMahon and Guy Kibbee, who clicked in "Babbitt" and "Big-Hearted Herbert" for Warner Brothers, will be teamed in 1935. Jean Dixon and Hugh O'Connell, two stars who appeared together in "The Milky Way" and "Once in a Lifetime" on the New York stage, will be teamed by Universal as a special 1935 attraction.

The first picture for the McMahon-Kibbee pair will be "Wanderlust," the story of an itinerant printer. It's by Edith Ellis and is now being adapted by Tom Reed and Peter Miln. The first for Miss Dixon and Mr. O'Connell (and I am told there will be many pictures to follow) is "Just We Two" by Harry Clork, author of "Milky Way" and Doris Malloy.

Jed Harris, the New York producer, has been threatening to come into the movies for the last four years. I am told he is now negotiating with Sam Woods, the director, and his threat may become more than idle words. The talk is that Harris will unite with Sam after Sam finishes a contract he has for "The Melody Lingers On," an Edward Small production. There is also another Woods' contract which calls for two independent pictures for United Artists release and it's the releasing arrangement that is intriguing the interest of Mr. Harris. We should hear more about it from Sam, who returned from New York bringing with him Lillian Hellman, author of one of New York's smash hits, "The Children's Hour."

* * *

I prophesy that at the end of 1935 Rochelle Hudson will be a big name in the movies. Miss Hudson has been in several important pictures, among them "Imitation of Life," and "The Mighty Barnum" and in both of these pictures she surprised even those who always had faith in her ability with the excellence of her performance. She'll have even better opportunities in "Richelieu" where she plays opposite George Arliss and in "Life Begins at Forty" with Will Rogers. Arliss who has ideas on his own stories, has done a re-write job on "Richelieu."

The English theatrical world feels that Hollywood has passed up a very definite bet in Elsa Lanchester, wife of Charles Laughton. Miss Lanchester is a swell eccentric comedienne, and when she was in England she was busy every minute. Jobs in Hollywood have been few and far between for her, with producers failing to realize her ability. James Whale has now signed her for one of the important roles in "The Return of Frankenstein," at Universal and, before that, she will be seen in a part in "Naughty Marietta."

* * *

Ida Koverman, executive secretary to Louis B. Mayer, can be put down as a female Columbus. It was she who saw Jean Parker's picture in a newspaper and sent for her to come to the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studios. And it was she who persuaded the studio to sign Jean. Now Ida has another protege, a boy named Edmond West whom she heard sing in an amateur play. She is grooming him for a film career and has entered him in the school at MGM with an idea that he may, one day, do her as proud as Jean Parker.

Snapshots of Hollywood

MAY ROBSON has three different reservations on the East-going train; she hopes to spend Christmas with her son; the IRVIN COBBS are summoning their friends to a cocktail party Saturday in honor of their author daughter, ELIZABETH; GLORIA SWANSON inviting a few of her friends for Christmas eggnog; MAUREEN O'SULLIVAN introducing her father to Hollywood with a cocktail party Sunday for the British consul; DOROTHY FIELDS, talented daughter of LEW, and her writing partner, JIMMY HUGH, have just turned out a snappy musical revue for RKO; a Texas admirer of JOHN BOLES arriving in town in a battered car covered with clippings and pictures of Monsieur Boles, getting himself an invitation to the Boles mansion; KAY FRANCIS, looking very smart, visiting MAURICE CHEVALIER on the "Folies bergere" set; AMELIA EARHART PUTNAM, attracting a crowd of Christmas shoppers when she stops to watch the maneuvers of a huge plane. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Pension Fund Concert Among Holiday Musical Treats

Of interest to music lovers is the concert scheduled for Sunday afternoon, December 30, at Symphony Hall, when, for the benefit of the Pension Fund of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, Dr. Serge Koussevitzky will present the orchestra and soloists in the third act of Wagner's "Siegfried."

This program was one of the musical highlights of the early fall season and the act includes the encounter of Siegfried and Wotan, the ascent up the mountain to the fire encircled goddess, and the love music between Siegfried and Brunnhilde. Elsa Alsen will sing Brunnhilde; Marie Murray, Erda; Frederick Jagel, Siegfried, and Fred Patton, Wotan.

* * *

Saturday, January 5, will be a red letter day on Boston's concert calendar. At 11 o'clock the second in the series of the "Morning Varieties," arranged for the particular interest of young people, will be given in Symphony Hall. Some of the features on the program will be Bradford Washburn's skiing pictures; the Newsboys' Harmonica Band; a Walt Disney Silly Symphony; a talk on the stars in moving pictures, by Everett Grant, and one of the Pillsbury motion pictures of flower life. Popular prices prevail at the "Morning Varieties."

* * *

In the afternoon, Josef Hoffman, distinguished pianist, will open his American tour at Jordan Hall, which follows concert appearances for the past several months in leading European cities.

Hepburn Film

On Christmas Day Katharine Hepburn will open an engagement on the screen at the Keith-Memorial in Sir James M. Barrie's famous play, "The Little Minister." The star will have the immortal role of Babbie, and in her support will be John Beal, Alan Hale, Frank Conroy, Donald Crisp, Reginald Denny and Dorothy Stickney.

Railroad Agents at Annual Dinner

William King was chairman of the annual "Survival of the Fittest" entertainment and banquet of the Railroad Agents' Associatiion of New England held last night at the South Statioin restaurant. John W. Golden, president of the organization, acted as toastmaster.

Speakers included William H. Day and Edwin L. Hefrin, of the Boston Chamber of Commerce; John F. Wheelock, of the American Airlines, and Frank J. Wall, vice-president of the traffic department of the N. Y., N. H. & Hartford R.R. Company. William F. Shanahan, register of probate in Essex County, directed the musical entertainment.

New Program at Scollay

"Flirtation Walk," musical film with Dick Powell, Rudy Keeler, Pat O'Brien and last but not least the West Point cadets heading the cast, is the screen attraction opening at the Scollay Square tomorrow.

Back of the footlights and headlining is Joe Browning in a 15-minute skit called "Timely Topics," a melange of current events and comedy. The Lee Stafford Revue with Adelaide Bendon, the Five Crackerjaks, Pablo and Caroline Barrie, the Three Kew Sisters, Kay Harrison and others round out the new Scollay program.

Gayetys Bill

Today's new program at the Gayety has for the screen attractions "That's Gratitude," with Frank Craven, Sheila Manners and Charles Sabin heading the cast, and the "Woman Who Dared," with Claudia Dell.

THOMAS STARS IN NEW FILM AT KEITH'S

By JOYCE DANA

A touching and [illegible] acted story of [illegible] child[illegible] of d[illegible] came to the screen at the Keith Memorial yesterday for a b[illegible] engagement that terminates [illegible] before Christmas.

"Wednesday's Child," if you remember your rhyme, is full of woe, and as the bitter and pathetic little figure who is shunted about by the courts between a divorced father and mother, young Frankie Thomas walks away not only with the picture but with the [illegible] laurels [illegible] child actors.

Karen Morley

Ray Phillips is an easy-going, affable husband, frequently away [illegible] business, [illegible] to his wife and an idol [illegible] to his ten-year-old boy. While the "other man" is glimpsed in the picture Kay [illegible] finds his charms irresistible. Her marriage has been [illegible], Bobby, her boy, an [illegible] obstacle to the path [illegible] true love.

[illegible] stolen kiss, witnessed by Bobby and his whole pirate gang, a sincere and tearful prayer to God to "not let mother love anyone but father", a bitter quarrel, overheard by an unhappy and despairing boy; a harrowing few minutes on the witness stand, [illegible] lead to what modern society is forced to conclude must be justice. Bobby becomes a "part-time" child, his custody shared by his mother and her new husband, his father and, after a few months, a prospective bride.

The child, recovering from a long illness, is shipped off to a military academy, along with a lot of other boys whose fathers and mothers found out too late that the responsibilities of parenthood should never have been theirs. The picture, unlike the Broadway play, which likewise featured the amazing Thomas boy, takes a half-hearted turn in Bobby's favor, and allows his father to forsake his bride-to-be at what is presumably pretty near the altar, to devote his life and his affections to the wronged child. In the play, pointing the moral more reasonably and sternly, both parents remarried, leaving their young son to the tender mercies of those who were paid to take their places.

Perhaps Bobby is not rough and tough as the many Reno-made orphans who migrate between homes and parents. To those who might wish to justify a course of conduct, or to self-appointed sophisticates who find in sentiment only an out-moded and exaggerated self-indulgence, "Wednesday's Child" may seem a trifle overdrawn in its implication that for those with children, divorce is a never never land.

As fine a performance as the season has thus far brought us is given by Frankie Thomas. Not a trace of self-consciousness mars his betrayal of the most difficult role a young pair of shoulders could carry, and even the stoniest of hearts will be moved to tears by his sincerity. Edward Arnold, another excellent actor to whom Hollywood is of late according the attention he deserves, is the typical dad a small boy could so willingly adore. Karen Morely has the entirely unsympathetic role of the selfish mother.

Pedestrians and police [illegible] aided the woman [illegible] of the scattered greenbacks. She had left the Back Bay postal station and was entering her automobile when a high wind breezed the money out of her open pocketbook.

Fish Identified in Gaffney Kidnap

New York, Dec. 20 (AP)—Police said today that Joseph Meehan, former street car motorman, had positively identified Albert H. Fish, confessed slayer of Grace Budd, as the man he saw board his trolley car in Brooklyn on February 11, 1927, with a boy believed to be the missing Billy Gaffney, 10, who disappeared from his Brooklyn home that night.

Fish was indicted for murder in the Budd case today.

'Just Come Quietly, Son'

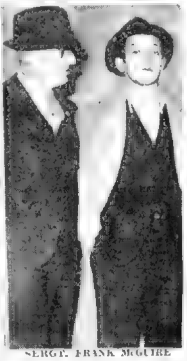
FREDERICK MARDEN



SERGT. FRANK McGUIRE

Held as a suspected handbag snatcher and bedroom prowler, Frederick Marden, above, who gives a Back Bay address, was put in a police lineup today to face possible identification by 30 or 40 women victims. He is in the custody of Police Sergeant Frank McGuire.

SLEEPING BOY IS ARRESTED

Slumber being [illegible] to [illegible] Arthur F. Fields, Jr., 18, Philadelphia, was arrested early today while sleeping [illegible] in a big chair in the home of Dr. Frank Higgins, 1[illegible] road, Brookline.

[illegible] 60 years old, held the youth [illegible] the arrival of a policeman.

In Brookline court [illegible] was held in $[illegible] to December [illegible] charge of breaking and entering [illegible] intent to commit larceny.

Young Fields refused to talk, even so much as to [illegible] address in the city he [illegible] as home.

Mrs. Higgins discovered the boy asleep in the living room. She awakened the doctor, who telephoned police.

The radio alarm sent a cruiser car to the Higgins home [illegible] less [illegible] minutes [illegible] the intruder was arrested.

Wife, 80, Asks Blankets for Blind Husband, 82

A little old woman of 80 whose husband, 82, is nearly blind and is in poor health, asks with much apology because she fears she is being too presumptuous, for a pair of blankets. She says:

"Charlie is always cold and I have two fires going all the time."

She has to care for the fires herself. [illegible]

[illegible]

"Charlie is going on 83. It is terrible hard on me but I got to take care of him."

One boy writes he could get a job if he had a bicycle.

A young mother of 22 who has already suffered a serious illness and now must undergo an appendicitis operation asks for clothes for her boy of two, girl of four and a baby boy 10 months. She also [illegible].

STOCKHOLDERS ASKED TO VETO MILL CLOSING

Although the directors of the Hamilton Woolen Company of Southbridge decided to confirm the decision of President Richard Lenihan in closing the mill here, the battle to keep the organization going was still on today.

In Southbridge sadness impended because the liquidation of the strike-torn plant meant loss of jobs for more than a thousand persons and town officials feared the consequent welfare drain.

But Wilfred Gravel, ERA director of the town, was on his way to Boston to try and get a large allotment of government money to provide jobs and lessen the financial strain on the community.

SEEK VETO

Mill workers, many of whom owned stock in the mill, were banding together and trying to enlist other stockholders in a veto of the closing plan. The directors are preparing to call a meeting for the stockholders' vote.

John A. Chumbley, representative of the Federal Textile Labor board, now in Southbridge said that he would wire Washington for help. He said:

"We are not ready to give up hope by any means."

Chairman Edward Fisher of the state board of conciliation and arbitration, which has made several attempts to adjust the Southbridge strikes, said that he and other board members would meet in Lynn today. He said the situation was "bad," but "not hopeless."

DISPUTES NUMEROUS

In recommending the closing of the mill which has an annual payroll of $1,000,000 the directors reviewed the number of labor disputes at Southbridge between the mill management and the textile union and said that it was impossible for the plant's continuance.

About one fifth of the town's population would be affected by the closing, although effects have not yet been felt.

Final payday at the mill was today. Last week's pay and an extra week's wages, as a Christmas gift from the company, was being distributed to 670 employes who remained at work during the strike.

SOLDIERS HUNT MRS. SCHAFFNER

By International News Service

Carmel, Cal., Dec. 20—"She had no reason to end her life. I believe she is alive, probably desperately ill somewhere near here. The search must go on."

Wracked by 48 hours of anxiety over the disappearance of her sister, Mrs. Marion Todd of San Francisco today directed the hunt for the missing Mrs. Eliot Doke Schaffner, 36, wife of a wealthy Chicago clothing magnate.

Soldiers from Monterey Presidio joined the hunt today for the frail socialite. The soldiers will make a door-to-door canvass of every vacant house here.

The theory that Mrs. Schaffner had ended her life in the pounding surf, a few blocks from her home, was discounted by the sister.

Barry Released on Auto Charge

Found not guilty of driving so as to endanger, Thomas J. Barry, 22, of Sigourney street, Jamaica Plain, son of former Lieutenant-Governor Edward P. Barry, was also released on a manslaughter charge.

On October 12 a car he was driving struck a telephone pole in West Roxbury. John Broderick of Pine Hill avenue died as a result of injuries. The case was tried in Suffolk Supreme court.

ROGERS

This Is Life

Down at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va., are meeting nearly a hundred of the most important and influential of the representatives of Big Business, talking things over.

Although the final report of the many committees has not been put together and announced, at the moment of writing (Wednesday), the consensus of opinion seems to be that direct relief, known commonly as the dole, is preferable to "made" employment on public works.

Robert E. Rogers

This, of course, is in contravention of the President's views as well the business men know.

One can see their point, of course. They believe that a subsistence dole will be an easier tax on public funds, provided the dole is wisely and honestly administered, than even a subsistence wage plus the vast cost of the proposed public works, many of which may not be needed or cannot, under present circumstances, be wisely afforded.

Yet, on the other hand——

An analogy which may not turn out to be much of an analogy, occurs to me. I have wondered whether the so-called private charities would not reap a greater net income, if they were not so constantly being sustained by balls, dances, tableaux "mornings for cultural entertainment" theater nights, minstrel shows, and other assorted amusements.

The cost to the society public that chiefly patronizes them need not be any greater.

The matrons and the debs and the young men about town might just as well buy tickets for entertainments which would never take place, thus knowing that the gross amount would go to the chosen charity, instead of being eaten up by expenses which are often so great that there is no profit remaining to be applied to good works.

Called It Racket

No less a person than one of the young Rockefeller women, at least by marriage, recently termed the whole business a racket by which society women get publicity for arranging affairs which are only secondarily charitable. Why not turn the money directly over to the divers good causes and let the circus go?

The answer, of course, is that society must have constant amusement, and if it can salve its collective conscience by having a good time for sweet charity's sake, it will be willing to spend more money in the long run than if it were asked for direct contributions. It is true that many a mickel makes a muckle, but the muckle under these circumstances, is not as large as it might be.

Something of the same argument might be adduced to the suggestions of Big Business on keeping the unemployed fed and housed. It is a matter of human psychology. It will cost more to keep the unemployed at some definite work which will have positive results in the way of roads and structures and improvements generally.

But such labor, even if it is obviously "made" labor, will have (or should have), a genuinely constructive effect on people who really want work and not a dole.

I believe, of course, that even the dole should be given only in return for some labor. The dole with idleness rots character. The dole with work attached may have a slowing up effect on private business, although a little ingenuity might avoid that difficulty.

But certainly the dole, especially in the form of a money handout, without required labor and without supervision—a condition that exists in some of our towns and cities—is not going to do any good to the morale of the unemployed.

In spite of the alarming extra costs, then, it would seem that the public works projects would reap a larger return in morale and character than however comfortable a scale of living on the dole

SUNSHINE!

MORE, BETTER

NEXT 11 YEARS

By Universal Service

San Jose, Calif., Dec. 19—Eleven years of redoubled shining on the part of the sun, bringing animal and vegetable fertility and general prosperity to the world, were forecast here by Dr. Albert J. Newlin, director of the Ricard memorial observatory at the University of Santa Clara.

Sun-spots, Dr. Newlin said, indicate the increased solar activity. His observations were borne out by the opinion of Dr. Oreutes Caldwell, vice-chairman of the advisory committee of the American Museum of Natural History, New York.

Record Suit

Boston University law school officials were named in a bill of equity brought in Suffolk Superior Court by Miss Rhea Josephson of Brooklyn, N. Y., former student at the school, which asks that they be compelled to furnish her records, which she needs in order to graduate from the school she is now attending. Without them, she says, she can not pass the New York bar examinations.

CIRCUS May Stay 'BROKE!'

EFFORT TO GET FARES FAILS

CITY MAY HAVE TO FEED ZOO ALL WINTER

Rutland, Vt., Dec. 20—About the way that things look now, this city has a stranded circus on its hands for the duration of the winter.

There's no zoo to house the lions and the elephant and the monkeys and the rest and there's no fund to pay the $16-a-day feed bill, and today there was little desire to do anything except kiss the circus goodby.

But that, after yesterday's deep-seated plans were upset by the weather, is proving a hard stunt. And Rutland is getting more and more worried.

Schools were let off at noon, every civic organization here, and most of the town-people got behind a gala "benefit" show. It was for the benefit of the bankrupt circus management, who would like to get to Mechanicsville, N. Y., if it could only get $300.

It was also for the benefit of the welfare and other charitable departments here, which have been paying the grocery bills since the show went "bust" December 12.

Then, it was too slippery for the elephant to navigate, and the monkeys got cross and wouldn't play, and, besides, there was too much snow and cold for most persons to come out.

So, they didn't raise the $300 and Rutland still has a circus.

10 Years in Jail vs. Model Love!

ROMANCE-AND-REFORM PLEA AWAITS ANSWER

DORA MILLICENT MILES

GEORGE E. GILBERT

If parole board clemency gives him his freedom, George E. Gilbert, Norfolk prison colony inmate, will "begin a new life" with his former "common law" wife, Dora Millicent Miles, he said today. The Miles girl is here from California to plead for Gilbert.

Beauty Waits

PAROLE BOARD HAS GILBERT'S FATE IN HANDS

By JAMES F. McENANEY

With the State Parole Board in a huddle over his romance-and-reform plea for pardon, George E. Gilbert today contemplated the possibility of 10 more years of prison and separation from Dora Millicent Miles.

"It's not a pleasant thought, because I've learned the real meaning of life. If I get out I'll be a good citizen. Dora is right when she says I love her. After my wife's divorce we'll be married and go back to California. There's a new life waiting there."

Miss Miles, red haired and 21, who crossed the continent to plead for him before the parole board yesterday, has seen him just once since extradition parted them in California, where their romance bloomed after Gilbert escaped from the Norfolk Prison colony.

They met at the colony in the office of Superintendent Maurice N. Winslow, Gilbert said today.

"There was only a card to say she was on her way to help me. Then she was here. She's a grand girl."

The man who is a kidnaper-payroll robber to the Massachusetts authorities and a model young husband and business man to California officials, didn't fit, by appearance, into either role when interviewed at the prison today.

He wore an old pair of overalls, his hands were grimey and blistered and he wielded pick and shovel. Gilbert has been put on hard labor since his return to Norfolk. He said:

"Action that will result in a divorce for my wife has begun and provision is being made to care for my four children. She will want them and have them, of course.

"Just as soon as the divorce is final—if I'm out of here—I want to marry Dora and go back to California."

Gilbert seeks a full pardon. He still has until November, 1945, to serve out sentences for robbery and kidnaping as he would not be eligible for parole until December, 1937.

IS HE SANE?

TEST SOUGHT OF GIRL KILLER

Auburn, Me., Dec. 20—As Jean Asselin, 17-year-old sweetheart of the cripple Willie Bouthiette, lay in a white casket in her tenement home today, counsel for the youth appealed for a mental test on the grounds that Bouthiette may have been insane when he shot and killed the girl.

Bouthiette's conflicting stories, police said, have given rise to the belief that there was no truth to the story told by the cripple that he killed his sweetheart as part of a suicide pact.

Funeral services for the girl who was one of the eight children of Mr. and Mrs. Fidelis Asselin, will be held tomorrow.

1 Shot, 2 Deer

By Associated Press

Concord, N. C., Dec. 20—Dr. Hubert B. Sapp killed two deer with a single shot while hunting in Pisgah National Forest.

Levelling down at a range of 150 yards upon a large deer, his bullet dropped its original target and passing through the deer's neck entered the heart of a smaller doe which was completely out of the hunter's view.

$10,000 Love Suit

Charging the alienation of his wife's affections, Hugh Cousins of Ashland street, Malden, today filed a suit for $10,000 in Malden district court against his sister-in-law, Mrs. Margaret A. Moore of the same address.

In his declaration, Cousins sets forth that his wife had been ill for some time and that the sister-in-law came into their home to care for her. Eventually, he was barred from his wife's room, he said.

Busy Medical Student! Twins and Little 'Carole'

By the time a young man reaches senior year at Boston University school of medicine a lot of things can happen to him and in the particular case of Murray Swartz of Dorchester, a lot of things did.

In one case it was twins. They weren't "Doc" Swartz's, but he had the unusual distinction of being the officiating director at their arrival in a Dorchester home. Medical students count occasions like this rare.

Furthermore, they were nine-pound-each-twins. Which is another distinction, if not for Swartz, at least for the twins.

But the romantic side of the picture, also in the field of obstetrics, came when in another Dorchester home, a little blue-eyed girl baby arrived, after Swartz assisted.

The proud young mother was so pleased she asked Swartz if he would like the privilege of naming the child. He said he would.

Then, Murray, having neither sweetheart or wife, but having a deep admiration for Carole Lombard, the movie star, he suggested the actress' name. The suggestion was endorsed unanimously.

McINTYRE

New York Day by Day

New York, Dec. 20—Harry Richman bounded into town again the hit of a musical show. In reality Richman is no longer the juvenile singer of romantic songs.

One suspects the hair dresser is neatly concealing a powder of white at the temples. Yet he continues his illusion.

O. O. McIntyre

More than any other performer of his era he has escaped the [illegible] eye of time. Not that he [illegible] but [illegible] him [illegible] the [illegible] Mae West [illegible] years ago. On the stage today he [illegible] not much older.

Even in the intimate close-up of the night club he remains one of the most formidable attractions.

One of his big assets is his constant fidelity to fashion. Like the [illegible] saturated figures of the clothing ad he is the fashion plate the average [illegible] to be.

Plus this he has amazing energy and a light approach that blends with strutting, mugging and capering.

The fervor he excites in putting over a song is a study in psychology. In almost [illegible] sedate [illegible] usually affected with nervous Victorianism, out of their chairs.

Among the tidbits both tepid [illegible] Square is 'Red [illegible] from the [illegible] Marble Arch allow the soap box orators a [illegible] little of expression. Lambasting the government and working into a lather over the [illegible] of capitalism provide a safety valve.

The steam let off is harmless enough and if checked might cause more serious explosions. There is friendliness about the Union Square cohorts. They strive especially to [illegible] rather feel a [illegible] more so than in most [illegible].

Private Mansions

The private mansions of Helen Gould, Cornelius Vanderbilt and Samuel Untermyer are about the only ones left on the avenue between 42nd and 59th. In 20 years the solid residential front has almost completely vanished. It is conceded Rockefeller Center saved the great thoroughfare from a shabbiness it does not deserve. With this architectural triumph its continued opulence is assured for this generation and next.

Libby Holman returned to the stage as a Spanish senorita with laced bodice and [illegible]. Her entrance was a curtsey and a kneel of supplication. There was a dove-like throbbing in her throat and her sombre eyes seemed luminous with a vague terror. How would the audience react to the not-forgotten orgy of headlines?

Charles Wa[illegible], star and veteran of innumerable first nights, stood valiantly by, steadying her with smiles and clipped whispers of encouragement. The applause was generous, but not overwhelming.

Joe Brennan, considered by the stage wise as foremost of straight men in cross fire patter, has been in almost constant search for a partner since the passing of his rowdy team-mate, Bert Savoy, 10 years ago. Yet each find failed to click. The handicap is heightened by memory of the vivid performances Savoy gave.

His catchline "You must come over!" became a part of the slang. Savoy's metier was a jovial commonness that rarely got beyond burlesque. A female impersonator who portrayed the hard-bitten lady of the sidewalks.

This Ear—That Air

By N. F. T.

It's more than a matter of singing, when scores of artists in the radio realm sing that snappy "Santa Claus Is Comin' to Town" tune. Each and every one of them will believe in the old boy with all their hearts if he brings them nice new contracts, signed, sealed and delivered by sponsors.

Renewals appear to be plentiful where expirations are due with the turn of the year. What's more, a good sized batch of additional programs loom on the 1935 horizon. In fact, the head men of broadcasting-dom wish that Kris Kringle might find a way to favor them with a couple of extra hours to be [illegible] on each day to make room for various offerings they could stage if most of the suitable times were not already taken by present features. Alas, all such stretching or altering calendars or clocks, is not possible of achievement, even by the beloved and bewhiskered idol of Yuletide.

It's called "The Pajama Club," and if acceptable to Travers after tonight's try-out, is likely to be heard any day. Jim Hadfield, Jack, Ted, Bud and Roy, the lads identified mostly with WEEI offerings, are the charter Pajama Club" members who hope to launch the effort . . . "WIFE IN CUSTODY"

By BEATRICE LUBITZ

CHAPPTER XXX

Spring was a miracle of flowers and fresh green grass. The first day the massive English pram was wheeled into the sunny corner of the open porch, the first crocuses had pushed their heads through the ground and looked bravely about. Daffodils and jonquils burst into bloom and the borders of the garden were covered with the heavenly blue of forget-me-nots.

Helen spent most of the time in the sun porch, from which she could see Anton working in the garden. The sun porch was a bower of flowers.

Miss Fredericks brought little Grace in for her feeding.

PASSES IN DREAM

In May Helen felt as if the earth could give forth no greater beauty.

The days passed in a dream. A contentment, a fulfillment of her whole being possessed Helen. The outside world no longer existed.

Here over the meadows hung the golden sheen of early summer. The baby slept peacefully in her pram. The white-figured form of Miss Fredericks was charming against the green. Helen was suffused with love. She hugged Miss Fredericks out of the sheer necessity for embracing a human form. Afternoons Helen squandered happily in anticipation of Walter's homecoming.

They had both decided to forget that night when he went away. They never alluded to it. It might never have happened.

Then in the middle of June one Friday evening Walter without warning brought Stella back with him. He was nervous and apologetic. Helen knew by the ruts in his forehead that he had not wanted to bring her, but had been unable to say no.

SORRY FOR HER

"You said she might come," he whispered desperately to Helen as Stella was changing her dress. "Poor kid, she's all broken up. She lost her baby. It's all over. She's closed her apartment and has been staying at mother's."

"Yes, I did say so, Walter," she admitted quietly. Then impulsively: "Poor thing. She looks dreadful. I am sorry for her."

"You're a darling." Walter kissed her gratefully. "Yes, she's aged terribly. "She's changed, too, Helen. You'll find her much softer and subdued. All her old high spirits gone. She won't be any trouble. You don't really mind, do you, Helen?"

She rumpled his thick black hair. "No, not very much. After all, it isn't her fault. She's to be pitied. I'll do all I can to make her comfortable."

For the first few days it seemed to Helen that Stella had really changed. She was so quiet—she scarcely spoke at all. Most of the time she just sat staring ahead of her.

Most of the time Helen tried not to let Stella see their love-making. She knew Stella's love for Jerry still consumed her. But this was difficult, for Stella was always about. And Walter, too, felt her presence oppressing him.

Summer melted into fall; autumn merged into winter and Stella was still there.

And now the serenity of Helen's days as well as evenings had fled. Stella suddenly recovered both her equanimity and her poise. She was getting a divorce from Jerry. He had obligingly furnished her with adequate evidence so that she didn't need to bother to go to Reno.

ATTRACTIVE MEN

She enjoyed her new freedom from the Salon—Miss Norma was in charge of 44th St.—although Stella made a feint of supervising by phone. During the late summer and early fall she swam every day, took up her horseback riding again and learned to drive the car so that Helen found herself obliged to ask Stella if she was using the car whenever Helen needed it. At Stella's behest Walter joined the Country Club.

"My dear," Stella exclaimed, "there are the most attractive men there. I took quite a shine to that young Jellicott chap. I hear they have loads of money, and he seems smitten with me. My dear! I've invited him for dinner tomorrow night."

"Maybe we can marry her off," Walter suggested hopefully. "After all, the poor kid has had a rotten time of it. And she's so much sweeter, don't you think?"

Helen, who had hoped when winter came that once again her home would be her own, and that Stella would go back, bag and baggage, saw now that her expectations had been in vain. Stella decided she was still too run-down to attempt to go back to town. Besides, she knew if she returned to New York she'd have to resume her work at the Salon. Irene, of course, was now definitely out of 57th St. They were all a little aghast to see how beautifully the shop ran without Irene.

"I'll keep Helen company through the winter," she told Walter brightly, "and when Fredericks has her day off I can take care of the baby for Helen. Besides, I don't feel quite well enough yet, dear."

CROWNING INDIGNITY

The crowning indignity came on a Friday afternoon in November. Helen had had a persistent, unpleasant toothache all morning but had not been able to get the dentist on the phone. His nurse said that Dr. Bancroft never came in on Fridays but she would try to locate him at his club and call her back. Helen chafed all morning under the nagging ache of the exposed nerve in her tooth—or such she supposed it was. To add to the strain of the situation, Stella was giving a dinner party that night for eight persons and she all but quarreled with Marie on the proper way to stud ham with cloves.

Helen, sensitive to Marie's injured feelings and, what was even worse, aware of the fact that Stella didn't know what she was talking about, had to stand by and say nothing. She knew better than to reprove Stella or to take Marie's part against Stella.

When Helen [illegible] the house Stella was having [illegible] the florist over the phone. He had made some slight mistake in filling Stella's order. Knowing that Helen loved red carnations and always ordered them, he had sent a dozen carnations instead of the red roses Stella had ordered.

"Order the roses, Stella, but let's keep the carnations. I'll take them up to my room," Helen suggested, as she drew on her gloves.

"Certainly not! It's a matter of principle. If you're willing to let the tradespeople walk all over you, I'm not. Why should you have the additional expense? No, he'll bring the roses and take back the carnations. That will be a lesson to him to pay proper attention to orders. The idea!"

And she snapped these instructions into the mouthpiece.

Helen's motor was cold. She jerked the self-starter viciously. Her face was a vast ache that extended up to her head and across the back of her skull down to her neck.

"Oh, Lord," she prayed softly as she backed the car down the driveway to where it formed a semicircle that made it possible to drive out frontwards. "Take away this ache and don't let me jump down Stella's throat because dear God, I can't stand it any longer!"

At five o'clock Helen drove home slowly. The pain in the tooth was gone but her head still ached. She wondered if Stella would mind if she pleaded a headache and remained upstairs. Walter wasn't coming home tonight. He always worked late on the last days of the month, staying overnight at the apartment.

Helen turned up the driveway.

"HOW'S TOOTHACHE"

It was cold and dark. The lights from the house shone warm and hospitable. She drove into the garage. Yes, she'd plead a headache.

Marie took her coat. "How's the toothache, Mrs. Riley?"

"Better, thank you, but I have a terrible headache."

"Oh, what a shame. Take some aspirin and lie down. She gave me a headache, too," she added bitterly half under her breath.

Helen pretended she didn't hear. She went slowly upstairs. Stella in a bathrobe opened her door. She was buffing her nails.

"Hello, feeling better?"

"A little, thanks. But I still have a headache. Do you mind if I don't come down to dinner, Stella?"

"Not at all. Oh, by the way, some relatives or other of yours blew in. I said you weren't home and they wouldn't wait. They acted awfully queer. I was so busy, you know, that I couldn't entertain them and Marie was in the cellar helping Fredericks use the dryer. She's so dumb she can't work it yet."

"Relatives of mine? Who?" said Helen.

"They came in a car . . . said they were just driving by. Havelheimer or Heimmyer or something. They left in a huff. I don't for the life of me know why."

"My heavens! My cousins from Brooklyn, the Havemeyers. When did they leave? When were they here? Why didn't you make them come in? Why didn't Marie serve coffee until I got back? Oh, my Lord! And they're gone! What was it?" Helen cried in distraction.

"Oh, this is too much! Couldn't you call Marie? Couldn't you be nice to them? They're my dearest relatives. How could you?" Helen wailed, tears of despair rising to her eyes.

Stella shrugged. "How was I to know? I'm awfully sorry, my dear, but I tell you I was busy with my dinner?"

"Your dinner! You'd think this was your house instead of mine! You're so wrapped up in yourself and your darn dinner that you couldn't even be decent and invite my cousins in. Oh, I can't stand it! I can't stand it any longer. Fredericks, Fredericks, come here at once!"

Ten-Day Milk and Banana Diet

By the Beauty Editor

IF YOU HAVE ANY UNPLEASANT bulges where bulges shouldn't be, and you lack a Spartan-like determination to go on a strict diet because of the ruin such fasts impose on your disposition—not mentioning, of course your health and your nerves—then it's high time you got acquainted with a diet that is both cautious and comfortable.

It's all very well to talk of dieting and calories and weight reduction in the good old summer time when no savory feasts are artfully concocted to tempt your perplexed palate, but why bring this up, you say, on the threshold of Christmas and turkeys and puddings and holiday sweets?

You can't eat your Christmas cake and keep your figure, too—and in this case we are strong for the cake—so why not start a little careful planning to take effect when the holiday season is over.

It's a new banana and skimmed milk diet which is adequate in every respect except calories. It also has the advantage of giving a feeling of satisfaction so often lacking in reducing diets. This diet will produce a weight loss of from four to nine pounds at the end of the first ten days.

Dieting should only be undertaken by persons in perfect health. This holds good, too of very young and elderly people. And since serious consequences may result from over-zealous attempts at too rapid loss of weight, a substantial ten-day diet is often best.

Although the banana diet is somewhat restricted in protein content, the use of such liberal quantities of the fresh, uncooked fruit appears to have a definite sparing action on the protein. It is also practically free of fat. Buttermilk made from skimmed milk is just as good and can be substituted for the milk in this diet if preferred.

To obtain this successful and safe banana and milk reducing diet, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope to the Beauty Editor, Boston Evening American, Boston.

Wrinkle Lotion

Question: As I sometimes cannot afford to buy expensive, nourishing creams, I am ever on the watch for home-made recipes. Recently a friend gave me the following recipe for a wrinkle cream: Dissolve 10 grains of alum in ½ pint of water. Then mix 1 dram of glycerine in another half pint of water. Add to it 1 dram of tincture of benzoin and 10 min. Oil of Lavender. Then mix all together and use every night. Please tell me whether you think it is good to use? MRS. A. E. T., Boston.

Answer: These ingredients are used in a number of similar lotions. It is a very mild lotion and might be beneficial if your skin has not already developed wrinkles. However, it is perfectly safe to use.

End Plays Are Frequently Obvious

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

A difficult play such as the squeeze or the throw-in usually requires elaborate preparation by the declarer; and a combination of these two plays almost always has to be nursed along before it develops. Occasionally, however, a hand comes up in which at the very first trick a very delicate end-play can be predicted with certainty.

North and South vulnerable.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 ♡ (1)	Pass (2)	Pass	1 N T (3)
Pass	3 N T (4)	Pass	Pass
Pass

(1) A shaded bid but justified by North's powerful major suit holdings.

(2) Not nearly strong enough for a vulnerable overcall.

(3) Indicating a powerful hand with two stoppers in the heart suit.

(4) North was sure that the hand would be played at three no trump and saw no point in mentioning the diamonds, since it was quite possible, if he kept quiet about his suit, that West might open it as a "waiting" lead.

West did not care to open a heart away from his minor tenace and led the duce of spades instead, in the double hope of setting up the spade suit and securing a lead through South's heart stoppers, if East had an entry-card. South captured East's spade Queen with the King, and with the diamond finesse well marked, could count nine uninterrupted minor suit winners. He planned to leave a spade and two hearts in his hand with the lead in the South hand so that if West kept a guard for the heart King he could be put in with the spade to lead up to the Ace-Queen of hearts; and of course if he unguarded the heart King, South could lay down the Ace and take his two heart tricks in that way.

No sooner said than done. South led the diamond Queen, and was gratified to find the King placed on it, ran his five diamond tricks, discarding his small spade, and then ran the four club tricks, after which West was indeed in the predicament South had foreseen. Since West chose to hold his King and Jack of hearts and Ace and Jack of spades, South simply tossed out a spade, and at the end West led a heart into the Ace-Queen, giving South five-odd.

Sauces for Holiday Pudding

By Martha Lee

SAUCES are very important to top off the holiday pudding; wine or rum used as flavoring gives the last note of authenticity to the Chrismas pudding. Approved by time and tradition these flavorings are real affinities to the spices and fruit that characterize the Christmas desert.

Here is a very old recipe (over 100 years) for a delicious hard sauce that is lighter and more delicate than the usual type.

YOUNG'S HARD SAUCE

⅓ cup butter
½ cup sugar (confectioners')
1 egg, beaten
½ cup sugar (granulated)
⅓ pint cream

Cream butter and confectioners sugar. Beat the egg well with the granulated sugar. Combine. Fold in cream beaten stiff. Add vanilla.

BROWN SUGAR HARD SAUCE

Cream one-third cup butter. Add gradually 1 cup brown sugar and 1 teaspoon vanilla.

RUM HARD SAUCE

1¼ cups confectioners' sugar
2 tablespoons sweetened condensed milk
1 tablespoon rum or rum extract
Cinnamon

Mix half the sifted confectioners' sugar with sweetened condensed milk. Add rum. Then add enough of the remaining confectioners' sugar to make the desired consistency. Form mixture into a roll and sprinkle top with cinnamon. Cut in slices [illegible] before serving. Makes about 1 [illegible] cups.

FOAMY WINE SAUCE

2 eggs, separated
1 cup sweetened condensed milk
⅛ teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons sherry

Beat egg yolks with sweetened condensed milk. Add salt and sherry. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites. Makes two cups.

Instead of wine, two tablespoons peach, apple or apricot brandy may be used to give a rich, fruity flavor to this sauce.

School Frock With Perky Bow

By MARIAN MARTIN

PATTERN 9100

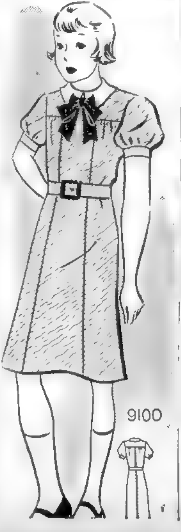
If your young daughter has been a particularly good little girl these last few weeks, why not reward her with a pretty new school frock like the one illustrated here? The trim little blouse is topped by a crisp, round collar, made with slashes in front through which a gay contrast-ribbon can be pulled and tied into a perky little bow. The stitched pleat at the back of the dress opens above the hem, and the way in which the body of the frock is gathered to the girlish yoke gives plenty of room for active young things to run about. Make the frock of diagonal wool or jersey or challis, and Betty will have a chic, warm outfit for all winter.

Pattern 9100 may be ordered only in sizes 6, 8, 10, 12 and 14. Size 12 requires 1¾ yards 54-inch fabric and ⅜-yard 36-inch contrasting.

Send fifteen cents in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for each Marian Martin pattern. Be sure to write plainly your name, address, the style number and size of each pattern.

Turn to our Winter Fashion Book for page after page of smart winter styles for children and grownups, every one of them designed by Marian Martin, our pattern editor. Order your copy today. Price of book, fifteen cents, but it only costs ten cents when ordered with a pattern. Pattern and book together, twenty-five cents.

Send your order to Boston American Pattern Department, 232 West 18th street, New York, N. Y.



GIVEN IN MARRIAGE —:— By Adele Garrison

A keepsake box, given to her by her mother, reveals to Madge and her father, mementoes of a broken romance

THERE WAS a [illegible] in father's voice [illegible] and made me [illegible] stand [illegible] me that I [illegible] a little less abashed at the [illegible] which had made me decide that I need not fear [illegible] with Etta Fairfax when [illegible] and the rest should return from the moonlight drive to the [illegible].

But there was a [illegible] quality in his tones which made me forget all petty consideration of my own affairs and long only to comfort him. His voice, his words were an unconscious fresh betrayal of the sorrow and remorse which have haunted him since the time after his flight from home in my infancy—when he realized that mother was still the one woman in the world for him and that he had forfeited the right to seek her or me because of his going away with her best friend.

"I am so glad I look like her, father," I said softly [illegible] makes me happier. I think [illegible] Faith resembles her [illegible]. I have a baby picture of mother."

"You have that picture?" he said eagerly. "But of course I might have known that you would have it."

"Would you like me to get it for you, father?" I asked gently.

"Could you without [illegible]?" he asked.

"Of course, I could. Wait for me."

UTILITY HEADS ARE FOUND TO DISAGREE

By HUGH E. BRADSHAW

Most significant development in the [illegible] disclosal of a [illegible] ing executives [illegible] President Roosevelt is reported to have [illegible] questioners [illegible] the statement of Thomas N. McCarter [illegible] of Public Service of New Jersey [illegible] dent [illegible] Edison [illegible] Institute [illegible] not [illegible] the attitude of utility [illegible] he had [illegible] with The [illegible] as more than a surprise, [illegible] financial circles generally felt that Mr. McCarter had the full backing of the industry and was empowered to present a strong and possibly a militant case for the power companies. Such a schism in the ranks of operating executives will go a long way toward implanting the belief in the public mind that the President is right and faces nothing more [illegible]

Thomas N. McCarter

Translating the unrest in the utilities to the stock market naturally made for a seemingly broad reaction. Close analysis, however, reveals that the lower tendency of share prices had some deceptive angles. The industrials, for instance, may trace about 50 per cent of their weakness on Wednesday to three issues. Allied Chemical, Coca Cola and International Business Machine are potent factors in the popular averages and their weakness managed to drag the index down. [illegible] itself probably gave [illegible] account and undoubtedly worked lower on investment selling. The rails slid off [illegible] one-side trading [illegible] anything else and failed to uncover any volume selling.

One of the results of recent security legislation, it now appears, is to be lazier market action. The sharp moves of other days when the market ran up to a peak, fussed around for a session or two, and then tumbled off in speedy fashion, seems past. Now prices struggle along on the upside, top off in leisurely fashion, then move sideways with occasional selling flurries that ultimately reduce the averages to fresh zones of accumulation. At the same time there is a tendency for the list to correct itself without wide moves, due no doubt to greater selectivity in both up and down swings.

Shorts. The [illegible] in market action will mean [illegible] traders must buckle down to the job of following more stocks and at the same time sacrifice some of their dependence on averages. Once adjusted to new conditions the chart reader is likely to discover that there has been a veritable boom in [illegible] the [illegible] sactions [illegible] is contained [illegible] that the Associated Press organized a bureau to prepare its own averages.

The outlook for sugar shares is dampened somewhat by reports indicating there is an abundant supply of raw sugar. Restricted profits are visioned in the initial 1935 quarter which will not be encouraging to market operations. Also it [illegible] sugars have enjoyed quite a bull market since summer and are due for a rest. The late spring and summer of 1935 should find most companies reporting better returns. Temporarily we would switch out of the group and seek elsewhere for investments.

The increase for the country at large is 133,300 barrels . . . With crude oil held at $1 a barrel, producers have done well this year, while the marketing outfits have been hurt by subnormal gasoline prices . . . Weakness in National Biscuit is attributed to the renewal of special liquidation; something like the break a few months ago when an estate tossed out a big block.

U. S. Steel, it is predicted, will end the year with oodles of cash even if it has been in the red.

Daily Stock Analysis

COMPANY—Electric Auto-Lite Company. A leading manufacturer of starting, lighting and ignition equipment, also makes storage batteries, dry cell batteries, welding machines, and through subsidiary, Moto Meter Gauge & Equipment, measuring and controlling devices for motors, aircraft, automobiles and watercraft.

CAPITALIZATION—Funded debt consists of a $40,000 mortgage only. Preferred stock of $100 par is 7 per cent cumulative callable at par and numbers 41,807 shares. There are 1,162,291 shares of $5 par common outstanding. Financial condition is good. Current asset-liability ratio is 6 to 1.

EARNINGS—For first six months [illegible] company reported 62 cents [illegible] share. This company [illegible] cents for the full year 1933. It is notable that this increase in income took place on a larger volume of business and a reduced profit margin. The company seems well situated from a future earnings standpoint.

DIVIDENDS—Nothing has been paid on the common this year although better returns led many to believe the 30 cent rate of 1933 would be at least duplicated. The preferred 7 per cent rate has been [illegible] and seems in no danger whatsoever judging by earnings and financial condition of company.

COMMENT—The acquisition of Moto-Meter Gauge & Equipment was a forward step and gives the company a well rounded line and provides easy access to business from Chrysler. This last should compensate for loss of Ford business. Common is not cheap on present earning power. Preferred a good business man's risk. Retirement of latter would be boon to [illegible]

Bonds Narrow in Light Trading

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 20—Prices moved with narrow irregularity in the bond market today. High grade rails were firmer with the secondary obligations showing small changes in both directions.

Atchison 4s, Northern Pacific 4s and Union Pacific 4s ruled steady to firmer. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, Erie 5s and Great Northern 4½s eased. Some issues, such as St Paul 5s and Missouri Pacific 5s, were a little better.

Utility bonds were generally softer. American & Foreign Power 5s and Consolidated Gas 5½s lost nearly a point each and lesser declines were seen in Kansas Gas 4½s and Detroit Edison 4½s. American Telephone 5s were a shade higher.

Industrial groups showed no definite trend. Goodyear 5s and Shell Union 5s had minor dips. Armour & Co. 4½s were fractionally lower. Standard Oil of New York 4½s, National Dairy 5¼s and American Smelting 5s were about even.

U. S. Governments gave a little ground, but foreign bonds were fairly firm. German 5½s were up more than 2 points. Columbia 6s staged a similar rally. Norway 6s were better.

Cotton Mixed in New York Market

New York, Dec. 20 (INS)—The cotton market was a mixed affair today, as near options eased from the previous close and distant months moved slightly higher.

Noon quotations were 3 points lower to 2 higher, with December off 3 at 12.47, March off 2 at 12.56, May up 1 at 12.59, and October up 2 at 12.45.

AUTO INDUSTRY IS BRISK ABROAD

By B. C. FORBES

Vincent Bendix, inventive automotive and aviation leader returning from Europe, gives this column this cheery news:

"The 1935 automotive outlook in Europe is the best since the war, the recent tax reduction on automobiles in Britain, Germany and elsewhere in Europe having notably stimulated demand.

"European car manufacturers are pretty generally adopting our devices on their products. Our electric starters, carburetors and other scientific instruments for both motor cars and airplanes are being generally accepted by foreign manufacturers and governments. America is still the most progressive in both automotive and airplane design and manufacture—probably because our enormous mass production can absorb heavy research and development expenses."

B. C. Forbes

He says that while in Russia he noted that, whereas the skilled workers in engineering plants and automotive research laboratories are almost exclusively Russian, practically all of the research engineers [illegible] America. He credits [illegible] with conduct [illegible] and exhaustively.

The volume of motor car and airplane production in Russia greatly impressed him, just as the wholesale output of flying machines in every leading European country impressed L. B. Manning, as told here yesterday.

Apparently the United States is half asleep at the aviation switch.

South Africa, thanks mainly to its gold production—at high prices is booming!

Advertising contracts for the coming year are being placed in encouraging volume.

Despite talk to the contrary, Britain is most unlikely to institute any open-to-the-public munitions investigation calculated to incense other countries. John Bull believes in attracting not repelling business.

America needs more unionization of one species, union between workers and employers.

E. H. Harriman, America's railway wizard, belonged to one school and age; his brainy daughter, whose untimely death occurred this week, to another.

Mr Harriman achieved through competition, domination, dictation. Mary Harriman (Mrs. Rumsey), hand-trained by her father though she was, developed into an ardent proponent of cooperation and conciliation. She achieved brilliantly in half-a-score different fields, official and non-official, agricultural and industrial, society and social.

Her oldest brother, W. Averill Harriman, also has been giving his time and talents to public service.

Christmas shopping is booming merrily.

New York city is flooded with pennies. Reason, 2 per cent sales tax.

Several new security issues are in preparation. But the too punitive securities act is strangulatory.

Steel manufacturers are still as firm as steel against closed shops.

'Tis rumored that certain Washington bureaucrats are ambitious to have the Treasury become the unrestricted boss of all our Federal Reserve Banks. A perilous proposal.

The latest shocking mishandling of relief supplies in New York haven't silenced agitation for inordinate expansion of political ownership and administration of other enterprises.

Legitimate hotel business in New York is doing much better since illegitimate speakeasies lost their pull. The trend now is towards high-grade places.

A prediction: Installment buying will expand next year.

Quiet Trading in Wool Market

Trade in wool is quieter than last week. Interest continues, however, as numerous bids are being made at levels quite a bit under asking prices but these bids are being rejected.

Some wool is moving especially on the finer quality average to short staple territory woods. Strictly combing 56s, ⅜ blood, is more active than last week, despite the generally slower trade. Prices on this grade and class are in the range 65-68c, scoured basis.

Grains Lower in Quiet Trading

Chicago, Dec. 20 (INS)—Grain futures were moderately lower today in quiet trading. Wheat was ⅛c up to ⅛c off, corn ⅛ to ⅜c down and oats unchanged to ¼c lower.

Wheat, new Dec. 97½-⅝, May 98⅛-¼; July 92-92¼.

Corn, new: Dec. 89¼; May 86⅞-87, July 83⅞-83½; old Dec. 89¼.

Oats, new Dec. 54¼, May 52-52⅛; July 47½.

General Motors and Chrysler firmed up in the final hour, and [illegible]

American Telephone was particularly weak [illegible] the communications [illegible] more than a point and getting down to a new low [illegible] Western Union also was heavy and off about a point.

Liquors, chemicals, farm implements and merchandise shares fluctuated narrowly. Oils were mixed.

MARKET COMMENT

The opinions of brokerage commentators were divided as to the actual trend of stocks. In some quarters the view was expressed that a backing and filling area would be witnessed within about a point of present level. The thought was [illegible] that a full technical correction may now be in progress and that this movement could carry a point or so further without doing any particular harm.

While the [illegible] had few friends in the face of the administration's attitude toward existing power and light rates, some analysts believed that various equities in this group had about discounted most of the problems which are confronting the leading corporations.

A contraseasonal increase in freight car loadings for the past week was predicted in railway circles. Estimates of a gain of between 25,000 and 30,000 cars over the previous week were being made. Traffic observers believed that the official figures to be published tomorrow probably would show an advance of 20,000 cars over the corresponding week of last year.

A sharp upturn in bank clearings for the week ended yesterday was cheering to financial students. Dun & Bradstreet reported that the total of $6,160,688,000 was the largest for any week in nearly three years. It was 32.5 per cent over the aggregate in the similar 1934 week. The gain was attributed partly to heavy fourth quarter income tax payments.

Nat. Cash Register Earns $1 a Share

Net income of National Cash Register Co. for 1934 probably will amount to $1 or more a share on the 1,628,000 shares of stock. For the nine months ended with September net profit was $1,229,731, or 75 cents a share.

The second and last quarters are normally the best of the company's year and if the present period's earnings were up to the June quarter, net income for 1934 would amount to $1.19 a share. October sales topped April's, but the November figure was somewhat below those of May and June.

Procter & Gamble to Share Profit

Directors of Procter & Gamble Co. voted a special distribution of 4 per cent to employes under the company's profit-sharing plan, in addition to regular dividends ranging from 6 per cent to 12 per cent.

The special payment covers the calendar year 1934 and the regular payment covers the six months to end December 31. Payments will be made as soon as practicable after December 31. Employes eligible to benefit under the plan number around 8000 and include those whose salaries or wages are $2000 a year or less.

CRIMSON SIXES PLAY BELMONT SCHOOLS

Harvard's freshman puck chasers try something new in the way of double headers this afternoon. In the past the freshies have shared the spotlight with the jayvees.

But this afternoon the freshmen claim all the attention. First freshman team No. 1 plays Belmont Hill. Then freshman team No. 2 comes along and takes on Belmont high.

The freshman material at Cambridge is so plentiful this winter that only by playing double-headers can Coach Clark Hodder give everyone a chance.

RETURN TITLE GO BECKONS MAXIE

'Slapsie' Ready to Fight Olin in Hub

By Jack Conway

Maxie Rosenbloom, former world's light heavyweight champion who will shoot punches at Tony Shucco of the North End in one of the four ten-round bouts at theg reat Christmas Basket Fund boxing show at the Garden tomorrow night, is prepared to sign to meet Bob Olin here if he wins.

TICKETS

Tickets for the Boston Evening American Christmas Basket Fund boxing show which will be staged by the Goodwin A. C. at the Boston Garden tomorrow evening may be secured at the downtown office of the Goodwin Club, 293 Washington street, Room 33, or by calling Capitol 5655. Tickets are also on sale at the Boston Garden, North Station, telephone Capitol 3200, the Boston Arena, St. Botolph street, and the season ticket office at Jordan Marsh Co. Popular prices will prevail for this show in spite of the all-star card. Prices are 55 cents, $1.10, $1.65, $2.20 and there are a few choice seats at $3.30. Fans are advised to make reservations today, for this show looms as a sellout

Olin recently [illegible] Rosenbloom's title after a blistering battle in the New York Garden.

"That defeat merely taught me how I can lick Olin," said Maxie. "I thought Bob was a tipover and didn't get tired training for the match. I am back to hard work again and was my old self when recently I licked Al Gainor.

"I'm going to get a great deal of personal satisfaction out of beating Shucco. Tony won the duke over me in a no-decision go at West Springfield two years ago. Since then he has caused me much annoyance, particularly during the time I held the championship. "I'll punch my lesson home tomorrow night. It will be just too bad what I shall do to Shucco."

DEVINE O. K.

Devine has shown fine form in his workouts at Jerry Buckley's gym on Friend street, while Arcelli has been stepping on high at Kelley & Hayes' gym on Hanover street.

Sammy Fuller, ranked as No. 1 challenger for Barney Ross by the Illinois Athletic Commission, ended his hard training for his 10-round bout with Bobby Pacho, Pacific Coast champion. Fuller will only do light exercises today at Kelley & Hayes' gym.

Pacho is a rugged, two fisted fighting man who never takes a backward step when he is trying to put out his opponent. Recovering from a setback, Pacho showed brilliant form in his recent 10-round battle with Barney Ross in Cleveland.

Ancil Hoffman wires that Buddy Baer, who collides with Henry Surette of Leominster in a six-round go, and Brother Max will arrive in Boston tomorrow morning. Buddy will have to display his best sock if he is to win.

Jack Dempsey, who will referee the Fuller-Pacho bout, is already in town.

Jack Sharkey, who will be the third man in the ring when Devine defends his championship against Arcelli, is eagerly looking forward to the great Garden show. Sharkey is also anxious to talk over the fistic situation with Dempsey and Baer.

The Goodwin Club has invited Governor Ely, Governor-elect Curley and Mayor Mansfield to be its guests at the Garden show.

The advance sale has shattered all records for Boston during the past five years. It is soaring towards the $15,000 mark.

Dave Arata announces that all reservations must be picked up by tomorrow noon.

HARVARD SIX OFF ON JAUNT TO MONTREAL

McGILL PLAYS HOST ON ICE TO STRONG CRIMSON TEAM

Harvard's varsity hockey team starts its first foreign invasion tonight. The Crimson is due to open its home and home series with the McGill Redmen at Montreal tomorrow night.

Tonight Coach Joe Stubbs will take 14 varsity puckchasers on board the Montreal express.

Harvard's 5-1 margin over B. U. leads many to believe that Coach Joe Stubbs has another intercollegiate champion in the making.

Stubbs' startin line has Fred Moseley at center, Sam Callaway and Al Dewey, wings.

The second line, George Ford, center; Dunbar Holmes and Mike Hovenanian, wings. The third line, Jim Roberts at center, Art Duffey and Ben Hallowell, wings. The defense pairings are Captain Bill Watts and Dick Dow, with Leo Baker as spare, Ash Emerson will start in the nets with Bob Waldinger as spare goalie.

PUSIE SWINGS INTO ACTION ON ARENA ICE

FAST STEPPING CUBS PLAY HOSTS TO BEAVERS

By Bill Grimes

After a four day layoff, during which they worked out daily in Providence, the Quebec Beavers are out to break the Cub winning streak tonight at the Boston Arena.

The Cubs have been traveling at a championship clip since they returned home after the training season. They have been on the losing end of but one game in 12 starts, sweeping aside all Canadian-American League opposition.

Jean Pusie, the eccentric defense man, will see plenty of action tonight. Pusie is a big favorite with the Cub followers. Against the Beavers, for the most part composed of Frenchmen, he will be at his best. Pusie is just about ready to put on one of his shows and if he decides to do his stuff tonight the fans are in for a real treat.

Manager Hitchman will open with the Motter Line, which has

Phil Bessler and Bob Blake on the wings, which trio will be followed by Gene Carrigan, Phil Hergesheimer and Happy Harnott. Art Giroux and Pinkie Davie will be reserve forwards, unless Red Johnson, the latest acquisition to the "Hitch-Men" is able to play, in which case there'll be a third line available.

For the second time this season the boys and girls of Greater Boston will be privileged to see a Cub game free of charge, if they are accompanied by an adult.

Johnson High Wins

North Andover, Dec. 20—The FIGHT Looms Over HAMAS

COURT BATTLE GARDEN PLAN

JOHNSTON SEEKS TO HALT TILT WITH MAX

New York, Dec. 20—Steve Hamas' proposed bout with Max Schmeling in March at Hamburg, Germany, faced two big hurdles today. One barrier was erected by the Madison Square Garden group, another by German law itself.

It seems that Manager Charley Harvey has demanded that Walter Rothenberg, German promoter of the match, deposit $25,000 in New York before Harvey and Hamas sail for Germany.

Alas for this request, a German law states that sending money out of the Fatherland is just not done these times.

The other barrier may be presented by Jimmy Johnston, matchmaker of the New York Garden. Hamas has a contract with the Garden which forbids him to box anyone before a challenger for Max Baer for next June is settled by the decided by the Garden.

And while Hamas could go through the fight with Schmeling in Germany without interference, he might strike many legal snags when he returned to the U. S., because of possible violation of contract.

SIX K. O'S

Six knockouts featured the B. A. A. boxing tournament staged at the clubhouse, Exeter street. Seventeen bouts in all were contested with the 135-pound class furnishing the fireworks.

Ralph Borden of Chelsea punched his way to a close decision over Henry Gruppi, Framingham.

AUSTEN LAKE on Spoils System and Grid Softness

Austen Lake

UNDER THE POLITICAL SPOILS SYSTEM that pertains to major league baseball as well as to government when a change of administration takes place, "Doc" A. A. Woods, the Red Sox trainer, is out of a job, and a new man of Joe Cronin's choice will soon be appointed to the linament and adhesive tape department of the club.

"Doc" was a sinewy, sad-faced little man, with wrists made massive by spanking the lumpy portions of his nude athletes. I have heard "Doc," standing over the rubbing table in the time of Southern training, give beautiful renditions of "Come Where My Love Lies Dreaming" and "Tip-Toe Through the Tulips" up and down Lefty Grove's bare arm with the rhythm and jig-snap of a boot cloth in the hands of an artistic shoe black.

The customers at ball games seldom got to see "Doc," unless a ball player swooned on the field and needed an ammonia cracker broken under his nose. Because "Doc" lived, like a brown pixie, amid his flasks of rubbing oil and tubes of aromatic salve.

Well, a ball player might have a croupy cold and come snuffling into "Doc" for relief, and "Doc" would grab his skull like the cork in a bottle and go to twisting it like a motorman hauling on a hand brake, until the patient's spine popped with the sound of seed corn over a hot fire.

* * *

Jimmy Neary's Southern Clinic

I DON'T KNOW WHY "DOC" WOODS was let go by the Red Sox. It doesn't matter. Because one "Doc" is pretty much like another in the ball business. They are silent, solemn men with an air of secret sorrow and a grave-digger's voice, who like to sling punches at the defenseless forms of their victims or stew them under heavy blankets with bath towels around their heads.

But most of all they like to air their scientific learning, so that a common crick in the back becomes "subacute fifth lumbar symptoms inducing myositis and impairing tractility."

I was standing, last spring, in the little tumbledown shanty where Jimmy Neary of the Braves runs his clinic in St. Petersburg. Frank Hogan, the Braves' bubble boy, was laying with his billows and waves of flesh dripping over the rubbing table.

"Now this," said Neary, gouging his ice-pick finger into Frank's moist thorax, "is the pelvic region."

There were other jabs, tracings and digs, until Hogan suddenly hoisted himself aloft and with dignity wrapped a postage stamp towel about his middle.

"I am here," Mr. Neary," he said with vast majesty, to be rubbed, not read."

* * *

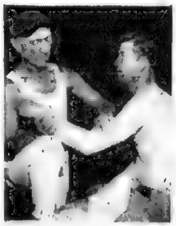
W. and J. Deserts to the Midgets

I AM SADDENED TO HEAR that Washington and Jefferson College will forsake high-powered football next fall and go in for a tea-and-crumpets style of play with a sweet, kissable team of junior scholars. "Henceforth," says President Ralph C. Hutchinson, "We will play within our own class."

Now I knew W. and J. in the day of Hastings, Speigle, Herman and others whom W. and J. picked up in the rural, barefoot country of Pennsylvania, where the natives grew thumbs on their feet and wore fingers the size of French rolls. I know, because in my time, I have been swiped across the chops and stamped on by several W. and J. teams, until it felt like being kissed with a side of beef and my anatomy looked as though it had been run through a waffle iron.

W. and J. seldom had more than eleven players in those days, being a college of 450 students. But those eleven were mountains of flesh with rain-barrel chests and tree-stump legs, whose audacious gallops made history. Playing W. and J. was like living through a train wreck.

Rubbed Out



Doc Woods is shown playing a tune on the failing arm of Lefty Grove in the Red Sox clubhouse during the last season.

There was a moment when I wrote to the late Sol Metzger, then W. and J. coach and offered myself as a candidate for a football scholarship, hearing that the pay and found was good, a disillusioning experience that ended when Metzger returned my letter with a pencilled notation, "We don't take little boys."

Well, these are decadent times, when the giants walk college fields no longer and one by one the last outposts of primitive football are swept away. The hairy old heroes are gone and the pink and white masculinity of the moderns is no fit substitute in my sight.

I sigh for the new purity of W. and J., and sprinkle blossoms of sentiment for the dead glories of those old types who scratched their furry persons and swung freshly from jungle limbs to the varsity scrimmage line.

The K. O. Motif in Wrestling

IN THE BELIEF THAT THE PUBLIC should get full viciousness for its money, the lower-case wrestling promoters hereabouts are signing on ex-heavyweight glove champions, like Jack Dempsey, Jack Sharkey and Jess Willard, as referees.

These are supposed to inject little novelties and by play into the contests, and at their whim slug the contestants with right-hand punches. The routine is fairly familiar by this time, with one of the wrestlers going into a tantrum and tearing the shirt off Dempsey's or Sharkey's back, which is the signal for the referee to flog the wrestler a brisk, extemporaneous smack on the chin.

It has taken many years to educate the public to an appreciation of wrestling as a branch of dramatic art, though happily in recent years the people have caught the idea. But by this time the public is over-educated and beyond the control of the promoters, who may, one of these days, have to insert a tasteful and artistic murder to keep the customers satisfied.

Mr. Boston Says:—

MacLean Seeks O'Mahoney for the Boxing Wars Fuller Is on Top

By Jack Conway

ALEX MacLEAN would like to sign Dan O'Mahoney to a five-year contract as a boxer. He believes the youthful Irish heavyweight wrestler could go on to win the heavyweight boxing championship from Max Baer.

* * *

The winner of the Steve Hamas-Max Schmeling bout at Hamburg, Germany, on March 10 will be the man to shoot for Baer's title next June. With the possibility that Jack Dempsey, in a hook-up with the Milk Fund, will promote the show.

Mr. Boston

* * *

Charley Harvey, who managed Tom Heeney, is piloting Hamas. He believes that this former college star will lick Schmeling again as easily as he did in Philadelphia.

* * *

Hamas had Schmeling in bad shape and hanging on in their ten round go in Philadelphia.

* * *

If Sammy Fuller wins from Bobby Pacho at the Garden tomorrow night, he will insist upon a bout with Barney Ross. Fuller should not be compelled to take on any more challengers before clashing with the lightweight king.

* * *

Rip Valenti Smiles

RIP VALENTI was all smiles when Dave Arata told him the advance sale for his stupendous ring attraction at the Garden tomorrow night is soaring towards the $15,000 mark.

* * *

The rush for reservations for the Garden ring offering makes me believe that the big, bad wolf is being routed by the boxing forces.

* * *

An effort will be made to arrange a bout between Max Baer and Jack Sharkey for January. The rival heavyweights would step four rounds and use eight ounce gloves. There would not be any decision rendered at the end of hostilities.

* * *

Paul Bowser was to hold another conference with Dan O'Mahoney today. The Irish heavyweight has turned down Bowser's bid of $100,000 for six bouts, but may be induced to consider a contract calling for only one bout.

* * *

One must admire O'Mahoney for desiring to return to Ireland to keep a promise to wrestle at a show to be staged for the benefit of the Irish Free State Hospital Fund. Jim Londos or Ed Don George may be persuaded to journey to Dublin to battle O'Mahoney.

* * *

O'Mahoney would have the edge in a Dublin bout, as Mike McTigue did when he defeated Battling Siki in Dublin on St. Patrick's Day in a bout for the light heavyweight boxing championship.

* * *

Small Boxing Clubs

I BELIEVE there is a field for a small boxing club like the Sharkey A. A., which is operating at the Rickard Recreation Center. This organization is featuring local boxers.

* * *

Small clubs help to develop the talent needed by the larger organizations.

* * *

Ray Cass, who recently staged a successful boxing show at the Arena, will be back in the fistic field early next year with weekly boxing offerings. Cass will feature Terry Warrenton, Nova Scotia light heavyweight.

L. S. U. OFFICIALS KEEP MUM ON GRID CHOICE

By Universal Service

Baton Rouge, La., Dec. 20—Captain Biff Jones' successor at Louisiana State University remained today almost as much of a mystery as "Biff's" resignation Saturday following a quarrel with Sen. Huey P. Long had been.

Out of the welter of reports and contradictions came as possibilities the names of three prominent football coaches—Bernie Bierman, head mentor of that super-eleven of Minnesota and Clark Shaughnessy of the University of Chicago.

There also was much talk today regarding the chances of Chick Meehan for the L. S. U. position. Meehan now coaches at Manhattan, but it is understood he works on a yearly basis, and so is free to accept a new job. Whereas Shaughnessy is reputed to be on a long-term contract at Chicago and it's very likely that he would be released there.

Information that these men were being considered by the authorities came from Dr. J. M. Smith, president of L. S. U. and indirectly from Senator Long and other sources.

It was indicated that the L. S. U. president favored Bierman and the Louisiana "Kingfish" favored Shaughnessy, who is a personal friend of Long's.

Long did say Shaughnessy was a "mighty fine man."

Meanwhile reports reached here that the University of Tennessee was seeking to obtain "Biff" Jones as head coach to succeed Major Bob Neyland. Neyland, an army officer, was ordered transferred to the Canal Zone.

Grimes Gives Recipe for Hockey Scoring

Reduce Center Zones to Aid Offense

By Bill Grimes

Just can't figure out how they are going to improve the game by shortening up the end zones . . . Naturally such a move will open up the middle zone but the last time I looked them over the cages were still at the ends of the rink.

The fans enjoy the wide open type of hockey only when it produces goals . . . It's goals they want but I doubt if they'll get them if the attacking zones are reduced ten feet . . There's far too much defensive hockey being played in the N. H. L. this season . . . Probably no more than usual but still and all it appears to be more pronounced . . . With the attacking areas cut down ten feet, the defending teams will have approximately 900 feet less ice to cover . . . The "Kitty-Bar-The-Door" teams will pack the defense and with the attacking surfaces reduced there'll hardly be room for even the puck carrier to get in.

Hobey Baker

Most of the current trouble—lack of goals—is due to the fact that the officials never call infringements on the anti defense rule . . . It's been in the book for years but apparently the referees have been instructed to skip it.

Personally, if they want to give the edge to the attack, I think that center zones should be reduced, now that forward passing is permissible in all three areas . . .

If Myles Lane was quoted correctly concerning Hobey Baker he's all wet . . . The great Hobey Baker was under a tremendous handicap playing the old-style onside hockey . . . Moreover, when Hobey was electrifying the hockey fans of this country and Canada, hockey was a seven man game.

Hobey Great

Hobey was a speed merchant of the Howie Morenz type . . . Under the present rules opponents would need a [illegible] to catch Hobey . . . The Ralph Winsor system of playing Hobey Baker was to assign THREE Harvard players to chase him from the start to the finish of a game . . . And, don't overlook the fact that Hobey Baker, as were the other players of his day was a 60-minute player. There were no re-substitutions in his day.

I'd like to see some of the present day fast steppers try to stay with Hobey Baker if he was relieved as frequently as are the players under the current style of play.

I don't say that Hobey Baker was THE greatest of all time hockey players but I do claim that there has never been any greater than the immortal Princetonian.

Imagine a player of Hobey Baker's ability and prominence receiving only one penalty in all the games he played at the old Arena . . . and, the one penalty he received was a mistake for it was not Baker who committed the foul but Win Kahn . . . And anyone who tried to infer that the Harvard wings did not check back should go into a huddle with Ralph Winsor . . . As for the point and cover point, the outer defense was playing identically as today when Hobey Baker was playing for Princeton and later for St. Nick's.

SPORT ABSENT 25 YEARS

SANTA COURSE WILL STAGE $100,000 RACE

By International News

Los Angeles, Dec. 20—Horse racing will come back to Los Angeles Christmas Day after a lapse of 25 years.

And the Los Angeles Turf Club, organized by sportsmen to return the game to this section, pointed today with pride to the most magnificent racing plant yet conceived.

A reinforced concrete and steel grandstand, a luxurious clubhouse, a fine mile track, a beautiful six acre paddock garden, and 65 acres of parking space are in readiness.

Plans are underway to handle crowds of 65,000 or more. Provision has been made to provide for traffic.

That the greatest thoroughbreds, jockeys and best known owners and trainers ever assembled at one course will be here was indicated by the early arrivals and the assurance from a long list of champions' owners.

Santa Anita will feature camerazied finish pictures to be available three minutes after a race—and the light-wave timing of the races.

GIANTS BAN Night Games

By International News Service

New York, Dec. 20—The New York Giants will play no night baseball next year, regardless of what the other clubs in the National League decide to do.

Charles A. Stoneham, president of the Giants, made this clear in a statement made public here today.

Stoneham said he appreciated the diplomacy and loyalty of Bill Terry's recent statement that the Giants might play night ball, if the club could make a lot of money that way, but added he had absolutely no intention of permitting his hired hands to risk their well-being under the arc lights.

"Baseball is strictly a daytime sport," Stoneham declared, "and I will not be a party to any scheme that tries to make it anything else. My team will play in the daytime only."

Stoneham added that he feared serious injury might result if such pitchers as Dizzy Dean of the Cardinals and Leroy Parmalee of his own club were allowed to play at night.

"The batters will be wary of fast ball hurling at night," he said. "The first thing you know they will be bad ball players, no good day or night.

"It costs about $40,000 to install a good lighting system for night baseball," Stoneham added. "What do you think it costs to keep those lights burning all night? It seems to me that any club that has that much money to spend might better spend it by buying a few ball players.

"I have too much money invested in the Giants to risk having the team weakened in one night. Suppose Hubbell or Terry or Bartell was ruined for the season. No, sir no night baseball for us."

"And how about women or children sitting in the stands when one of those line-drive hitters knocks the ball into the crowd? Even a man sitting in the darkness of the stands could not judge a ball coming at him fast out of the bright lights in front of him."

Tech Swim Find

Ward Rafferty, Technology freshman swimmer whose three wins in the Tech interclass meet gave his class the championship, is the best prospect in years to wear the Cardinal and Gray tank colors.

Developed by Coach Unterse, the new find easily scored his wins over varsity team members, and should set a new University Club pool record before the end of the current season.

The Beaver frosh open their season soon after the Christmas holidays when they will meet Williams, '38, tanksters.

Patricks Form Ace Ice Hand

Hockey's First Family

LES, FRANK, LYNN, MURRAY KEEP N. H. L. CLAN IN HEADLINES

By Bill Corum

New York, Dec. 20—They say if you scratch a hockey player you will find a Patrick, and a visit to the dressing room of the New York Rangers has convinced us that there is truth in the report.

There were three Patricks about, drinking milk and chatting gaily, for lo, the Rangers just had won a hockey game. And in the visitors' dressing room across the arena there was another Patrick drinking bitter tea, for his Boston Bruins just had taken a tap on the chin.

This came to four Patricks all told, which is a full hand in any hockey game though truth forces the admission that the youngest was a mere spectator.

There was Lester, who manages the Rangers and who has come to be regarded as Old Man Hockey in our town. There was his son Lynn, who plays with the Rangers, not without the rather childish razzing from the top-tier roosts cropping up at times.

Some of the one-man public address systems up there under the eaves insist on broadcasting that Lynn slid into big league hockey on his pappy's coattails. Which doesn't seem to bother either Lester or Lynn greatly, there being no reason why it should. After Lynn comes his brother Murray, now a member of the Crescent-Hamilton A. C. amateurs of Brooklyn who will also s[illegible] under the big top before very long. And finally, there is brother Frank of the Bostons.

COMMON FOE

On the evening on which we refer, brother Frank was the common enemy. But that was no new role for him. Frank and Lester Patrick have played with and against, managed with and against, and been in business with and against one another for so long in hockey that they take whatever setup comes along as a matter of course.

More in sorrow than in anger I pointed out the standings of the clubs in the National Hockey League to the members, Patrick, "Ching-a-Ling" Johnson, Cook brothers and Boucher, and asked them how they got that way.

The players replied shamefacedly that they didn't know. But the Drummondville, Ontario, White Eagle had a name for it.

"Old age," he said. "We had to expect it. We've had it coming to us quite a while. Each year we have been hoping to get through one more season with our veterans still good enough to beat the best, even though each year we have felt that one might well be the last."

Which is the way it goes with veteran teams and veteran athletes. "One more year," they cry. Always "one morey ear," and human nature is such that even managers and others on the sidelines, who should know better, fall into the error of believing them.

It is also why veteran teams usually go bang all over when they go. It is next to impossible to quit on them when they are winning and when they have ceased to win it's too late.

SETUP CHANGED

The hockey situation at the Garden may also have been affected by Colonel John Hammond's return to the head of that department. For several seasons Patrick was in complete command of the club. But last summer, Colonel John leaped back into the saddle, waving his sword and shouting to the housetops:

"Let the hockey fans eat cake. I'll spend a quarter of a million dollars to make the Rangers range."

But, alack a day, all the colonel has spent to date is his time. As Joe Simpson, of Bill Dwyer's Americans put it, "The colonel should have spent a little more in the pay envelopes of his players and a little less in the newspapers."

And just as certain rival teams, with star players on their rosters, were beginning to take an interest in all that coarse money about which the colonel had been declaiming, the colonel suddenly switched his theme song to boxing.

Of all things. As if there were any boxing worthy of the name around here any more. But maybe this is just a ruse of the colonel's to draw attention from the unhappy plight of his Rangers. They are down there keeping company with such birds as the St. Louis Eagles.

Tsch, tsch, tsch, colonel, and in your gilded offices you wrestle with the eel-like problems of the manly art.

Just the same, scratch a hockey player and you'll find a Patrick. And vice versa.

ROUGH TIGE!

In the Poughkeepsie Courier of Sunday, December 9, the following headline caught my eye:

"Vassar Beaten by Princeton in Hackey Game."

So those were the guys I picked to beat Yale, eh? So that's it?

"Why was that lady I seen you with last night, Red?"

Red: "That wasn't no lady; th[illegible] was a Princeton fullback!"

So they beat Vassar. Good for them. And the score was 5 to 2! And the game was fast! Why the little rascals!

There was even a group of lady sports writers out to cover the big annual classic between the tearing Tigers and Vassar's products of the daisy chain store system. And the report of Miss Vivian Liebman I find particularly entertaining.

"Princeton vs. Vassar," she begins, and continues, "or how to be a gentleman and a hockey player at the same time, a game in four quarters taking place on the Vassar hockey field on an icy Saturday afternoon."

Wheeeeee!

"Nothing daunted by the fact that they had been defeated on Friday by a hockey team from Yale (say it ain't so, Miss Liebman!), the Vassar team plunged heartily into what cannot properly be termed a hockey match, but which was certainly good fun." (Yeah?)

"The game started off with a great deal of stick banging and before five minutes were up two sticks had been broken." (You've got to watch those Princetons every minute, Vivian.)

From this point forward the story is virtually an epic of the "gallant charge of the orange-blazered, though gentlemanly, Princeton men."

DEAN OFF

Wins Two Bouts

By International News Service

Los Angeles, Cal, Dec 20—Man Mountain Dean of the whiskers and 317 pounds of blubber last night did in the wrestling arena what Max Baer has been threatening to do in the boxing ring.

The Man Mountain met two opponents in the same ring on the same night and he defeated both of them in exactly 197 seconds by the timekeeper's timer.

In the first bout Howard Cantonwine had Dean hanging on the ropes before the referee finally disqualified the [illegible] hangman for unfair tactics. That match lasted 180 seconds and then came the 17-second affair with Pat O'Shocker.

While the Dean double-header held the interest of the fans, Chief Little Wolf, the full-blooded Navajo Indian, was carded in the top spot and he easily defeated George Zaharias in straight falls.

Mal Unsigned

New York, Dec. 20 (INS)—Dr. Marvin A. (Mal) Stevens, former football coach at Yale, has not as yet signed a contract to coach again at New York University, where he guided gridiron destinies during the [illegible] to be announced today.

Rumors were in circulation that Stevens had been signed to a new three-year contract but he took occasion to deny them. "I can definitely state I have not signed any coaching contract yet," he said.

It is learned from reliable sources that Stevens will be asked to continue at the head of the Violet gridiron machine for at least another year.

REDS WIN

Providence, R. I., Dec. 20—The Providence Reds scored a 6 to 2 triumph over the New Haven Eagles in a Can-Am League game here before a slim crowd. Their victory gave the locals 17 points against 15 for the Quebec Beavers. The latter sextet meet the Cubs tonight at the Boston Arena.

Brookline Trails

Belmont High courtmen handed Brookline's five a 19 to 16 defeat at the Belmont gym yesterday. Captain Dave Donnelly and Joe Massett starred for Belmont.

Duke's Dead And Sport Kings Weep

Chicago, Dec. 20—For nine years little "Duke" O'Connor boasted to his friends from his sick bed of his list of greats—such big fellows as Babe Ruth, Al Williams and Frank Hawks, speed flyers, and more recently "Dizzy" Dean, famous pitcher.

Today "Duke" friends—his real name is Stephen J. O'Connor, Jr.—are boasting that they knew "Duke," said one.

"Gee, he was a game guy."

And he was, for it was his gameness that brought the mighty slugger and pitcher of baseball and the speed kings of the air to his bedside.

For nine years "Duke" had suffered from a crippled hip, due to an infection caused when his hip was broken.

Flowers, cablegrams and messages from names bright in the world of sport came to "Duke's" home tonight.

He will be buried tomorrow for the courage of the 15-year-old boy finally succumbed to the ravages of his affliction and he died last night.

POLOISTS in Twin Bill

A fast polo twin bill will open the Boston Indoor Polo League season on Saturday night at Commonwealth Armory. The 110th Cavalry Dragoons cross mallets with the White Mountain Polo Ranch trio in the feature. In a preliminary, Winchester will oppose Battery A.

Saturday night's contests will inaugurate a series which will be played each week-end on the Armory tanbark for 13 consecutive weeks.

The White Mountaineers will start Lyle Phillips, Jack Pickering and Joseph Poor. Forrester Clark, his brother Nathaniel, Capt. Roland Mangini, Bob Almy, Albert Burrage and John "Slim" Walsh are Dragoon players.

Kingfish in Hole

Chicago, Dec. 20 (INS)—Kingfish Levinsky may have to fight Heavyweight Champion Max Baer for nothing here the night of December 28. Alleging that Levinsky owes him $5000, Harry Sugar, president of the Stand Fish Company, has brought suit for an injunction to tie up Levinsky's purse for the Baer exhibition fight.

Trojans Play At Stoughton

KASELMAN AND HICKEY DUEL IN SCORING

By Bob Ahearn

Nat Hickey of the Trojans and Cy Kaselman of the Philadelphia Hebrews, running neck and neck for the leading scoring honors in the American Professional Basketball League, will battle next Thursday night at the Arena.

The Trojans will be out to win their fifth straight home encounter at the expense of the Hebrews. The teams have played against each other twice this year, with each winning once. Thursday's encounter will be a rubber contest, with plenty of rivalry.

Two exhibition games are down in the books for the locals before the invasion of the Philadelphia hoopsters. Tonight they will visit Stoughton, while Saturday they are at Whitinsville.

Converse Rubber Co. quintet entertains the Brennan Club five of Somerville at the Beebe Junior High court, Malden, in the only Greater Boston League game carded tonight. Converse has won three games out of five starts. George Hamilton, leading scorer in the circuit last season, will be seen in the Brennan Club lineup.

A Husky Change

Johnny Bialek, beaten out by Charlie Kussmal as first-string right wing of the Husky sextet, may return to that post when the N. U. puck chasers again play the icemen from University Heights.

Bialek formed the second line with Dan Callahan and Stew Mayberry and played sensational hockey against "Snooks" Kelley's boys, twice flipping a pass to teammate Callahan, who tallied each time.

Coach Nelson Raymond was well satisfied with the offensive play of the team, and will work to strengthen the defense.

"Scooter" Cahoon, who for the past two years has been a defensive wing, passing to his teammate to convert the scores, gave ample notice that he will be leading scorer for Northeastern this year. Already he has rifled the puck twice into the net of the opposition.

Winthrop Boys Feted

The 1934 Mystic Valley League champion Winthrop high grid team was honored at a banquet at the Winthrop Lodge of Elks last night. Each boy was presented with a gold football on behalf of town merchants by Bob Haley, Harvard quarterback and 1935 captain, who is a former Winthrop star.

BOWL BATTLE WILL BE CLASH OF SYSTEMS

TIDE COACH TAKES ROCKNE BANNER INTO FRAY

By Walter Kiley

The widely discussed argument as to the relative merits of the Notre Dame and Warner systems in football receives one more severe test in the New Year's Rose Bowl game between the Alabama Crimson Tide and the Stanford Trojans.

Dr. Eddie Anderson, head coach at Holy Cross, a teammate of Frank Thomas, Alabama coach, when the latter was quarterbacking the Rocknemen, is one who feels certain that Tiny Thornhill's Californians are in for a shellacking. Tiny is a disciple of Pop Warner, having acted as his assistant for several years on the West Coast.

THOMAS GREAT PILOT

Dr. Eddie, who played with the immortal George Gipp, tells us that Thomas was one of the technically great quarterbacks of the early 20's, a field general "who never called one wrong."

Thomas was of the school in which a quarterback was primarily a director, doing little of the actual ball carrying. He followed Joe Brandy, who was quarterback of Gipp's team in 1919 and 1920, alternating with Chet Grant, now one of Elmer Layden's South Bend assistants, in 1921.

In his senior year, he had as his understudy Harry Stuhldreher, who, with Frank Carideo, are hailed as Notre Dame's greatest quarterbacks of all time. Harry, now coaching Villanova, came under Thomas' wing, later assuming a more sensational role as one of the "Four Horsemen."

PLAYED IN MICHIGAN

Few realize that the Crimson Tide mentor played for Western State Normal, one of the two Kalamazoo, Mich., colleges, before entering Notre Dame. He was coached there by Bill Spaulding, who now is the head coach at U. C. L. A.

He might have been the big chief at Georgia University at the present time if he had so desired. But after acting as assistant to Carl Stegman, who is still a member of the rules committee, he acepted an offer of the head man's position, at Chattanooga.

Georgia then brought on Harry Mehre in his place and after one year, the latter was made head coach. Thomas, evidently, realized that he had made a mistake by leaving Georgia and returned there, in spite of two fine seasons at Chattanooga, only to be made assistant to Mehre instead of head coach.

GOLF PROS Tilt Planned

By Associated Press

Melbourne, Australia, Dec. 20—Possibility of the establishment of a regular series of matches between Australian and United States professional golfers, along the lines of the Ryder Cup contest between the United States and Great Britain, was seen today as the touring American pros prepared to return home.

A team headed by Paul Runyan, United States P. G. A. champion, made a successful tour of the Antipodes, and there is discussion of the Australian pros returning the visit next year or in 1936.

In the meantime, Gene Sarazen, making an independent tour of Australia, has contributed $250 toward a fund being raised to send two of Australia's rising young golfers, W. Bolger, the open champion, and D. Spence, who was third on the open, to the United States and Great Britain next summer.

After watching Bolger play, Sarazen said he believed he was a potential world beater and would show well in the big American and British events.

VIRGINIA VAN WIE 1934 WOMAN STAR

Boston Girl Ranked

By Associated Press

New York, Dec. 20—To Virginia Van Wie, 25-year-old girl who captured the United States women's golf championship this year for the third successive time, goes the distinction of being rated the outstanding feminine sports star of 1934.

First woman golfer to win this honor in the four-year history of the Associated Press sports poll, Miss Van Wie gained the No. 1 ranking position in competition with rivals in all women's sports, by vote of the country's sports editors and writers.

Although the poll disclosed a wide range of opinion, Miss Van Wie finished with a substantial margin over her three closest rivals, Helen Jacobs, three-time national tennis champion, Lenore Kight and Katherine Rawls, famous swimmers, who were ranked in that order by the voting fraternity of experts.

Miss Jacobs Trails

Miss Van Wie was put at the head of the list by 37 votes out of 102 observers and accumulated a total of 177 points, figured on the basis of all placings.

Miss Jacobs, winner of the 1933 Associated Press poll, trailed Miss Kight in first-place nominations, 16 to 19, but won second position on points with a total of 131 to Miss Kight's 89.

Miss Rawls, the little Florida girl who holds all-round swimming honors, obtained 11 first-class votes and 72 points.

Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, the Texas girl who was a 1932 Olympic sensation and won the No. 1 ranking position in that year's poll, finished fifth, with 20 points, one more than Stella Walsh, Cleveland Polish girl and Olympic sprinting champion.

Miss Didrikson, although not so conspicuous since she turned professional, attracted attention this year because of her latest demonstration of versatility by scoring a 77 in golf tournament.

Miss Didrikson and Olive McKean, Seattle swimming star, each received four votes for first place. Miss Walsh received three, Glenna Collett Vare and Eleanor Holm Jarrett, two each, and Dorothy Round, Anne Townsend, Maureen Orcutt and Mrs. Lela Hall, noted trapshooter, one each.

Tabulation of the poll on the outstanding woman athlete of 1934, showing total points (figures on basis of 3 for first place, 2 for second, 1 for third):

Virginia Van Wie, golf; national champion, 177.

Helen Jacobs, tennis; national champion, 131.

Lenore Kight, swimming; national champion, 89.

Katherine Rawls, swimming; all-around champion, 72.

Mildred (Babe) Didrikson, all-around competitor, 20.

Stella Walsh, track; Olympic sprint champion, 19.

Dorothy Round, tennis; British champion, 14.

Glenna Collett Vare, golf; former national champion, 14.

Eleanor Holm Jarrett, swimming; backstroke champion, 12.

Olive McKean, swimming; national sprint champion, 12.

Anne Townsend, field hockey, 6.

Sarah Palfrey, tennis, 6.

Carolin Babcock, tennis, 4.

Helen Hicks, golf professional, 4.

Mrs. Ella Hall, trapshooting, 3.

Betty Jameson, golf; Southern champion, 3.

Maureen Orcutt, golf, 3.

Single votes for the following: Dorothy Traung, runner-up for national golf championship; Betty Nuthall and Katherine Stammers, British tennis players; Alice Marble, tennis; Loretta Turnbull, speedboat racing; Lisa Lindstrom, swimming.

JOBLESS Coaches WONDER

McGOGIN DROPS GRID REINS

FAUROT IN LINE FOR CARIDEO'S UNFILLED BERTH

New York, Dec. 20—Somebody's going to get up an All-America team of unemployed football coaches if the firing doesn't stop soon.

Already "at leisure" for one reason or another are such nationally-known teachers of the game as Dick Hanley of Northwestern, Captain Lawrence (Biff) Jones of Louisiana State, Eddie Casey of Harvard, Bill Ingram of California, Frank Carideo of Missouri, Major Bob Neyland of Tennessee and Dan McGugin of Vanderbilt.

The "squad" may be much larger by the time the coaches gather for their annual conclave here immediately after Christmas.

McGugin dropped the coaching reins he held at Vanderbilt for 30 years in order to become director of athletics. It took a War Department order to get Neyland out of Knoxville. But the others all have resigned after persistent sniping by alumni or other sources.

Throws Deuces

Ingram was subjected to considerable criticism before he quit his post at California and abandoned his coaching career to enter business. His place at Berkeley has been taken by Leonard (Stub) Allison. The other vacancies, however, still are wide open.

The situation at Louisiana State perhaps is most interesting. Jones was a highly successful coach at West Point before he traveled South. His Louisiana State teams dropped only two conferences games in three years, but Jones resigned after tangling verbally with Huey Long, to whom L. S. U. is "My University."

At the moment, Clark Shaughnessy of Chicago is mentioned most prominently for the job, but John F. (Chick) Meehan, of Manhattan College, whose New York University teams of a few years back were nationally famous, also is understood to be under consideration.

Vanderbilt definitely is trying to lure Ray Morrison away from Southern Methodist, but the others still are undecided.

Although Jones has been mentioned as a possible successor to Major Neyland a Tennessee, it seems more probable that Major Bill Britton, Neyland's assistant, will be stepped up a notch.

Faurot in Right

Don Faurot, whose Kirksville (Mo.) teachers college teams have compiled an amazing record in the last few years, apparently has the inside track for Carideo's job at Missouri. Northwestern, reports say, would like to get Ossie Solem from Iowa.

William J. Bingham has been given the task of finding a coach for Harvard and has done much traveling in the Mid-West and the East in quest of Casey's successor.

The latest head to fall was Robert (Doc) Erskine of Loyola of the South. Erskine succeeded Shaughnessy at the New Orleans school. His resignation yesterday was accepted "with regret," but the fact remains that there was considerable alumni muttering over Loyola's comparatively unsuccessful campaign this year.

First Defense

New York, Dec. 20—The new light heavyweight titleholder, Bob Olin, will make his first defense of his championship since he won it from Maxie Rosenbloom, at New Orleans, January 7.

Permanent World Mark

WALSH'S 113-FIGURE STILL GOOD

By Ed Cogswell

For a world's record to stand 21 years clearly demonstrates its class, but when Archie Walsh back in 1913 closed the season with the Chelsea Square team with a league individual average of 113 32-72 he put up a mark that has never been approached.

It further shows the merit of this performance that there were 16 teams in the Suburban League that year, consequently Walsh was compelled to bowl in match games over the entire list of alleys. Half of his games were, of course, contested at the Chelsea Square, and the schedule called for the other half to be on foreign alleys.

In all fairness to the present day bowlers it now appears that the record will stand shooting for a long time to come. In going over the list of stars in the Suburban in 1913 I note that Paul Poehler had an average of 111 39-81, Wentzell one of 107 60-85, and Ike Allen was right there with 107 30-90. By the way, Wentzell still holds the individual world's candlepin record at 184 for a single string. All of this surely proves that the old boys were keen on their bowling skill.

Down in the North End there is a team in the Marketmen's League named Jason. It is well named, too, for three of the five bowlers are Pop Jason, P. Jason and the third known as just plain Jason. This team is a red-hot combination. Anyway the last match game it put up a score of 1528, P. Jason coming through with strings of 126, 124 and 118, for a total of 369. Plain Jason knocked down 126 in his second string and totalled 330. Anderson in the same league spotted a string for 134.

* * *

All of which brings to mind that in the Newton League, which is addicted to the bottle pin habit, the Waban team is dominated by the Hill family, there being B. Hill, Sr., B. Hill, Jr., and M. Hill when the team toes the foul line . . . Saugus is leading the league and in the last match scored 2925, which displays plenty of class . . . Joe Spillane, one of the crack candlepin bowlers of the olden days, is now connected with the Boston fire department, being located in Babson street, Dorchester . . . Joe was long seen in the ranks of the Suburban and City Leagues . . .

* * *

Three of the women bowlers were in the magic 100 list, Miss Smith getting 102 at the Hawley street alleys in the N. E. Power, while Dennis posted 102 in the Cigarette League at Shanley's, and Russell just landed in the list with 100 . . . Foremost in the Bank & Trust League was Woodhouse with 139, a great second string, and total pinfall of 326 . . . Other sizable records were Hunter's 336 and Mackins' 332 . . . Following their match the Hood Rubber Superintendents' League held an informal dinner at the Crawford House.

TROJANS FIT

Stanford University, Cal., Dec. 20—Final term examinations threw the Stanford football plans for a loss here today, with several of the Cardinal varsity gridmen away from practice because of the class work. The men are all in top condition for the Rose Bowl game with Alabama on New Year's Day, yet the absence from the workouts is causing Coach Tiny Thornhill some concern.

The Alabama team is favored in the big game, and Thornhill believes his eleven needs every possible bit of work in order to dam up the Crimson Tide.

Harvard Cagers Still Seek 1st Victory

CRIMSON BOWS TO ORANGE

With MacMillan and Whitehead in the starring roles, the Tiger varsity quintet defeated Harvard, 25 to 18 at the Harvard Indoor Athletic Building.

MacMillan and Whitehead accounted for 17 of the Princeton's total of 28 points, the former with nine, and the fleetfooted Whitehead one point in back with eight.

Bob Nevitt of the winners sank a foul shot just before the close of the first half which gave the Tigers a 10 to 9 lead. At the start of the final, the Princeton courtmen started sinking the basket and Wes Fesler's coached five were outclassed in their first Eastern Intercollegiate League fray.

For Princeton, the playing of Captain Grebuaskas at guard and Whitehead at forward excelled. For the Crimson Jimmy Grady played brilliantly.

GOLF LEADER

THOMPSON TOPS FIELD IN BAHAMAS OPEN

Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 20—Jack Thompson of Youngstown, Ohio, led the field in the $5000 British Colonial Open golf tournament going into the final 36 holes of the 72-hole route today. Thompson had a 132 total for the first two rounds.

Joe Turnesa of Hartford, Ct., and Bobby Cruickshank of Richmond, Va., were tied for second with 134's. Al Watrous of Birmingham, Mich., came next, in fourth position, with 135.

John Shimkonis of Andover, Mass., was in a position to gain today, with his 142 total. Roland Hancock of Stoneham, Mass., seemed out of the going with his 147 total.

Al Watrous, former Ryder Cup team member, playing in the British Colonial $5000 open at Nassau, Bahamas, has been established co-favorite with Olin Dutra in the event.

TECH, ARMY GO

Manager Towers Doggett of the Technology hockey team announced today that a game with the Army at West Point has been arranged for Jan. 12.

The Engineers, who will utilize the vacation period in developing their passing game, will not play during this period, since Jean Leman, Dave Mathias and Bob Driscoll, the Canadian first line trio will go north for the holidays.

FRISBY ASKED TO LEAD BROKERS IN FASCIST CAMPAIGN

Washington—Congressman Horace Frisby today announced that he had received an anonymous postcard asking him to take command of a new Fascist army of 200,000 Wall Street brokers to march under sealed orders to an unnamed destination.

"If," said Mr. Frisby, "the Dickstein committee wish to match wits with me, I will be glad to tell them some things that will make their hair curl. I am known as 'Man's Man Horace' to the big financial interests. They fear me—yet they can't help but love me for what I stand for. Naturally I remind them of Musolini—whenever I can. While I am flattered by this offer, I cannot give a definite answer until I know where the parade will start and where it wil finish. I remember accepting a blind date once before, and found that the big interests had uncovered all the manholes along the route of march. Furthermore, I will not march forward or on any piers in the Great Lakes region."

MONEY DOOMED HAUPTMANN TO ARREST

This is the tenth of a series of 12 articles on Bruno Richard Hauptman who on January 2 will be brought to trial charged with the murder of the Lindbergh baby.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Copyright, 1934, by International News Service.

Flemington, N. J., Dec. 20—Arrest of Bruno Richard Hauptmann as the passer of the Lindbergh ransom money was inevitable because this "hot money" was showing up at intervals along a path paralleling the East Side subway in New York city.

Crafty as Hauptmann seemed to be, he was not slick enough to cover his trail. Nor did he reckon with the skill and determination of Lieutenant James J. Finn, the New York police department's "ace Lindbergh case detective." Nor upon the alertness of Walter Lyle, gasoline station attendant, who methodically recorded the license numbers of the cars of all drivers who offered bills of the Lindbergh ransom denominations.

For months Lieutenant Finn and his "Lindbergh case detectives" were only a hop, skip and jump behind Hauptmann. It was apparent to them, from the manner in which the ransom bills were turning up, that the man passing them must live on New York's East Side—probably in the Bronx.

The banks had the serial numbers of the Lindbergh bills. Usually it took some time for the "hot money" to reach the banks after it had been passed in some store or saloon.

BILLS SOON APPEAR

Several days after the ransom was paid by Dr. John F. (Jafsie) Condon, a Lindbergh bill turned up in the East River Savings Bank at 95th street, New York City. Many Germans live in this part of Manhattan. Finn and his detectives suspected a German was involved because they remembered that in one of the ransom notes the German word "Gute" was used for good.

As the months drifted by other Lindbergh bills showed up in a few beer halls, in grocery stores and at a gasoline station or two. Whoever was spending the money was doing so in a careful manner.

Psychiatrists studied the handwriting of the ransom notes. Their conception of the type of man who wrote the ransom letters coincided with the views of the police as gained from those questioned about ransom money that had been passed.

LYLE QUICK OF WIT

But it remained for the quick-witted gasoline station attendant —Walter Lyle—to bring about Hauptmann's arrest. One day in September a man in a Dodge sedan drove up to the station at 2115 Lexington avenue, New York City. He bought gasoline and tendered a $10 gold certificate to Lyle.

"You don't see many of these any more," remarked Lyle.

"Oh, yes you do," replied the man (he was Hauptmann) in an unguarded moment. "Why, I've got a hundred or so more."

As Hauptmann drove away, Lyle jotted down the license number of the car as he had been instructed to do on all gold notes. It was "4U-13-41."

When the bill was deposited at the bank, the number was checked and bank officials immediately telephoned Colonel Schwarzkopf. In a jiffy the police got the license number and other details from the filling station and were on Hauptmann's trail.

They followed him for several days. On September 19, Hauptmann drove his car with the "4U-13-41" license out of his garage and away from his house. He had gone only a block when Finn and his men blocked him.

(Tomorrow: Col. H. Norman Schwarzkopf and others who will figure prominently at the forthcoming trial of Hauptmann).

Listen, World!

By Elsie Robinson

Should the Blushing Bride's Old Man Keep the Newly-weds going, in the style to which they hope to become accustomed, until the new husband can foot the bills himself?

Elsie Robinson

A surprising suggestion? Yes—but not a novel one. Over in Europe Dad's been coming across like that since young Billy Bear Claws first wrapped a nuptial club around Tilly Tiger Tooth's tonsil and cried —"Meet the Missis!"

And even today brides are supposed to supply dowries—and nobody blames the prospective bridegroom for fading if she doesn't.

For they look at marriage differently than we do, in the old countries. Much less sentimentality—and far more seriousness.

We concentrate on poetry—they go in for practical plans, and see no reason why Young Love shouldn't discuss its future in terms of Cold Cash. For how's it going to eat if it doesn't?

MARRIAGE IDEAS

This—according to William McDermott, Chicago religious editor—is one reason why European marriages last, and why our muchly advertised American romances don't.

So, being the father of two adorable daughters, Mr. McDermott has decided to follow the experts. And has electrified Chicago and way stations by making this BRIDES ON SUBSIDY offer in the November issue of "Good Housekeeping Maggazine."

Knowing his fellow humans, he has prepared his come-back in advance.

"Why," says he to prospective objectors, "should I consider my obligation to my daughters completed when they have finished college, any more than when they have finished high school? I believe it is fully as good an investment—and almost, if not fully as important—to spend two or three thousand dollars, or more if necessary, in helping my daughters, if they need it, to marry happily during their mating time, and in assisting their husbands to complete their life-work preparation, if they have no other source of support, as it is to see them through their earlier education."

And suppose he doesn't? Suppose Parents refuse to carry on after the wedding day—as is now their habit?

TOLD THE ANSWER

Some years ago Judge Ben Lindsay, out of long and sad experience, told the answer to that —and daily every Front Page adds tragic footnotes to his report.

Frustrated youth, watching the wasted years drift by, unable to mate until the sweetness of desire has long passed. Others, more rebellious, seeking satisfaction in furtive free love alliances, with its inevitable consequence of shame and despair.

Still others abandoning the hope of education—"taking any job as long as we can be together"—doomed to almost certain life-long poverty for themselves and their children—blaming each other for their spoiled lives.

That's what happens when Dad won't help. And in all our present chaos that is the darkest chapter —the frustration of Youth, the denial of the right to mate and make homes and give birth at the proper time.

"It's their own fault," sneers the ostrich tribe, with their heads ducked deep in the sand of sentimentality. "Why don't they take a chance and start on nothing, as their grandparents did?"

As well ask why they don't hunt turkeys and scalp Indians in Central Park! They can't. Such "chances" are gone forever. So—what?

"So subsidize them!" cries Dad McDermott.

So WHAT—sez you?

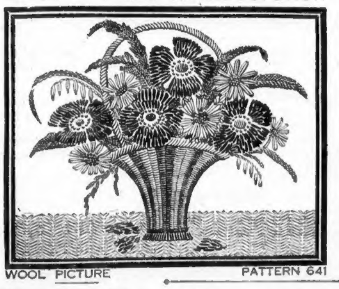
Wool Picture as Decoration



WOOL PICTURE PATTERN 641

What a handsome gift this picture will make. And what fun it is to embroider these colorful flowers in wool. Poppies, daisies, and blue ragged-sailors are grouped in this basket. You can use it on a pillow or bag as well as for a picture. The design measures 9½x12 inches.

Pattern 641 comes to you with a transfer pattern of the picture; detailed directions for making it; illustrations of all stitches needed; color suggestions.

Send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) for this pattern to Boston Evening American Needlecraft, Dept., 82 Eighth avenue, New York, N. Y.

Taxpayers, Organize!

And See What Happens

THERE are some forms of public expenditure which at the moment are hard to assail, notwithstanding the waste and political corruption known to exist in connection with them.

The relief of the helpless is so imperative a duty that outlays purporting to be for that object are not scrutinized as perhaps they should be and in the near future inevitably will be.

But needless duplication of government, the inexcusable multiplication of political place-holders at the expense of the overburdened taxpayer, is a form of waste which should NOT be difficult to assail. The attack on such waste should not be postponed a moment.

Here is no question of the hungry and the destitute.

NO reason exists in this field of waste for postponing scrutiny and regarding economy as ill-timed.

The distended cost of government is like a fat hog consuming the nation's substance by day and night—absorbing the wages of the industrious and the savings of the frugal with gluttonous and insatiable appetite.

Why do the taxpayers of the nation submit to it? A very slight degree of energy on their part would put an end to it.

ORGANIZATION should be the watchword of the plundered taxpayers of the United States. The remedy is in their hands if they will only use it.

There should be, as a start toward effective action, a general enrollment of taxpayers. They are all in the same predicament—all victims of this callous greed of the politicians and their self-serving machines, which cares nothing for its victims, but only for their money—money which should be used for the upkeep of homes and the education of children and the care of sick and dependent kindred.

Tax-fed politics, the maintenance of over-lapping and duplicating local governments, which perform no useful function, is a picture which has a reverse aspect.

Its converse side is the ploughed and pillaged earner of salary and wage and the humble homes of the land, forced to endure privations that need not be and a tax burden which is infamous.

THE taxpayers are a mighty group, in point of numbers alone, among our population.

Let them ENROLL as a first step toward achieving organized strength.

When they know each other, and can call on each other for mutual support, and reach a point where some can lead and others can follow, they will have achieved something, which the politicians fear above all things—NUMBERS AND UNISON.

Their voices and their votes will become irresistible!

The shamelessness of the politician in fighting for his meal ticket is bad enough. But the inertness of the taxpayer and his submission to the outrage of local governments which exist ONLY FOR THE SAKE OF THEIR COST—are almost equally blameworthy.

TAXPAYERS, ORGANIZE—AND SEE WHAT HAPPENS!

Make Christmas Bright

There is another kind of Christmas.

The Star is thin and far above the tenement roofs—too long a journey for the Unwise Men of today.

No candles burn beneath bright holly; only the gas jets blown, sometimes, into darkness by despair. No log fires crackle warmth and cheer; no fire of any kind turns back the cold. There are no trees bedecked and brilliant. There are no trees at all. The stockings are full, but only with spindling legs, and holes.

There are no bells, no happy, hopeful voices. Only the sound of children, weeping. And the women's faltering: "Hush. Be still. There is no use in crying."

No festive board groans beneath the smoking bird and fixings. There are only the crusts of the bread of yesterday.

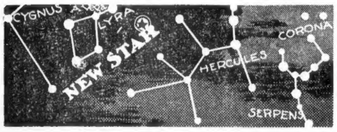
* * *

The Wise Men of today follow the Star that is thin and hard and cold above the homes of the hungry and the poor forgotten. They come to the true happiness, the true spirit of Christmas.

For your own peace and for the sake of little children—for the sake of the Star still burning over Bethlehem—GIVE NOW to the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund.

New Star Looming

Harvard on the Lookout



Harvard Observatory, constantly studying the heavens, is on the lookout for a new star.

Dr. Harlow Shapley, director of the observatory, reports a faint showing of the star on recent photographs.

Contrary to popular belief, astronomers for years have studied the skies by means of photography, NOT by peering through telescopes.

The new star, believed to be the latest "exploded," is near Vega, second brightest star in the heavens at this time.

The possibility has long been considered that the Star of Bethlehem, which the Wise Men followed 1934 years ago, was also an erupting "nova" type orb.

Only a comparatively few years ago, the appearance of a new light in the skies would have terrified the superstitious.

Today Science coolly sets about studying it, to see what can be learned to man's advantage.

Another Barometer

Says Business Is Better

The tax collection barometer says business is better.

Not the happiest sort of an indicator say those from whom the collecting is done.

But there is some solace in the hope that with things turning for the better there will be a letup in taxation.

It will come the faster when the General Manufacturers Sales Tax is substituted for the multitude of current nuisance taxes.

Happy Squatters Struggle Along

By Edwin C. Hill

The Globe Trotter of Hearst Metrotone News

KEEP YOUR PLACE CLEAN BOY OR--!
NEW·DEAL AVENUE
AL SMITH BOULEVARD
HARD LUCK ON THE RIVER

The sheer ability of most human beings—if they have any kind or pluck at all—to make the best of things—to wangle some kind of living out of hard luck—has never been so strikingly demonstrated as during the past four years.

One of the best evidences of that fact I know of is to be found here in New York city, in the squatters' village on the edges of the East and North Rivers and in other corners of New York. One such village I have in mind—two hundred homeless, jobless men have set up there a little town of their own, and it is really a wonderful thing to see.

"Hard Luck-on-the-River" they call it, but there's more fun and liveliness to be found in and among these shacks made out of discarded odds and ends than you could find, perhaps, in many of the penthouses of Park avenue. For these, leisure is no problem at all, though it seems to have become a great problem to many.

FISHES FOR TIMBER

Some time ago a sailor named Bill Smith was sitting by the riverside, watching the big and little boats ply up and down, and taking in, with a sailor's eye, all the life and movement of the broad stream.

He noticed that the river was dotted with drift wood, and that an abandoned shipyard was full of things useful to gentleman in hard luck, anxious to set up a home.

So Sailor Bill began to fish timber out of the river and pick up tin and things from the old ship yard, and pretty soon he had a neat three room cottage all to himself, with a gorgeous view and grand salt air to breathe.

And then others began to come along, and, in no time at all, a regular little village arose, some sixty hand-made shacks, with regular streets—New Deal avenue, Roosevelt lane, Al Smith boulevard and so on.

Bill elected himself Mayor and Street Cleaning Commissioner. Owning a stout pair of fists, he rules the roost. The place is clean and sanitary.

The hard problem is to get food, but some of the men get a few days work now and then, and all chip into the common pot. They buy stale bread and meaty bones for soup, and cheap cuts of meat when they can afford it.

A LADY BOUNTIFUL

Sometimes a Lady Bountiful comes along in her gleaming car and with a great hamper full of food. They manage, somehow, and laugh it off, waiting for better days. It seems to me that Sailor Bill has done something pretty big with his "Hard Luck-on-the-River."

Many persons have written to me to ask if I believe that leisure can be regimented. They allude, of course, to James S. Stanley's Leisure League, which has been attracting considerable attention, serious and otherwise, from the public press. The only answer this writer can give is: "I doubt it."

It is unlikely that a people of various racial origins, which means various inherited trends toward amusement and the employment of leisure, can be lined up and marched en bloc to a Carnegie Library.

But James S. Stanley means well and glows with benevolence.

Isn't It So?

You cannot reach a thousand unless you reach one. One is the beginning.

Hendrik Van Loon Writes About Olden Silhouettes

Of course you must have seen them. Either in your own house or in that of your grandparents or in the window of an antique shop or in books about the American Revolution.

Hendrik Van Loon

For, a century and a half ago, silhouettes were as common as snapshots are today. Everybody, high and low, rich and poor, had himself silhouetted, and such mighty personages as George Washington and Marie Antoinette and Frederick the Great and Benjamin Franklin were silhouetted until they must have been as sick and tired of their own shadow-pictures as George Gershwin must be of his "Symphony in Blue."

The process was exceedingly simple. Everybody could make silhouettes. All he needed was a willing subject, a white screen, a candle, a piece of black paper and a pair of sharp scissors. The rest depended upon his native or acquired ability to catch the shadow of his victim and reduce it to the right proportions.

For all I know, the craze for these fascinating shadow pictures may return tomorrow. For the stage is all set for a return of M. de Silhouette.

It was during the middle of the 18th century. France, having been most thoroughly ruined by the dynastic wars of the Great King Louis, was about bankrupt.

Looking around for a bright young man to swing on the dangerous trapeze of finance, the choice fell upon a certain Etienne de Silhouette.

Young Etienne had been an industrious student of British financial affairs and had translated a good many English books on finance into French. In short, a sort of "brain trust" all by himself.

In March, 1759, he was put at the head of the finances of France with unlimited power.

This appointment was made at the suggestion of the King's mistress, Madame de Pompadour.

Of course, the poor New Dealer could accomplish absolutely nothing unless first of all he tackled the problem of the privileged classes. He tried to reduce the pensions of all the hangers-on of the court. He proposed to tax the lands of the nobles.

He suggested that everybody spend just about half of what he had done thus far, and that there be an end to wasteful luxury.

The idea struck the court as something so unusually funny that all of fashionable society began to do things "a la Silhouette," which was a polite way for doing them "on the cheap."

And when the joke had lasted long enough, they booted poor Etienne de Silhouette out of his high office, and the good old times came back right away, and the New Deal went into the discard, and Etienne de Silhouette died as the forgotten man, and Marie Antoinette and her boy and girl friends had a perfectly swell time, laughing their pretty heads off over this pedantic bore with his everlasting howls about the coming disasters and calamities.

And then they all went to jail and had their pretty little necks cut off by the guillotine.

And that is the story of the New Deal of the year 1749 and of Monsieur Etienne de Silhouette.

BRIDGE FROST

I have been chilled by winds unkind.
I've felt the snow upon my cheek,
But nothing cold that comes to mind
Exceeds the frosty way they speak.
This blighting scorn of what I did:
"Of course, you didn't have a bid!"

I mentioned diamonds once last night.
I thought the suit might help her out.
It seemed to me I had a right
An ace and king to talk about.
Then down my neck an iceberg slid:
"Of course, you didn't have a bid!"

I've sat in drafts; on bleacher seats
I've shivered through a football game.
I've felt the icy wind that beats
Upon the poor duck hunter's frame,
But here's the coldest blast of all:
"You never should have bid at all!"

The Communist Program of World Revolution

"The conquest of power by the proletariat is the VIOLENT ABOLITION of the power of the bourgeoisie, the DESTRUCTION of the MACHINERY of the capitalist state.

"WE proclaim openly that our design can only be realized by the VIOLENT OVERTHROW of the ENTIRE TRADITIONAL social order."

[The above policies were formally adopted and promulgated as the Communist program by the Sixth Congress of the Kommintern of the Communists' Internationale, which was held in 1928 in Moscow.]

Communists and Civil Rights

By BENJAMIN DeCASSERES

THE case of Alexius Karllson, the alien Communist, held at Ellis Island for deportation, is full of that ironic mirth which is said to make the gods laugh at all things mortal and which we on earth call the "horse-laugh."

Karllson, whose only use for America is to turn it into a Communistic slave-state, had his lawyer apply for a writ of habeas corpus. He wants to stay in this accursed capitalistic country. He demands the right to go on talking and plotting—neither of which he could do in his own ideological Utopia, Russia, without an early morning trip to the live-target yard.

Federal Judge Goddard denied the writ on the ground that membership in the Communist Party was proof of conspiracy to overthrow the Government.

* * *

ASIDE from the momentous nature of this decision, the question arises why these enemies of the American form of government are so loath to leave our shores.

They exhaust every legal resource of this hateful "bourgeois-capitalistic-ruggedly individualistic" democracy to stay here.

They appeal—with perfectly straight faces—to their "rights" under the Constitution—that Constitution which they would tear into bits.

They abjectly petition judges and bureau chiefs at Washington to keep them here, where they are, so they claim, being "exploited" and "enslaved"—those very judges and bureau chiefs that they would not only abolish but lift into the air with a gentle bomb or two.

They use, in a word, all the privileges that a free democratic country accords them—free speech, free pen and a free soap-box—TO ADVOCATE THE ABOLITION OF ALL THESE SWEAT-AND-BLOOD-BOUGHT PRIVILEGES.

WE PERMIT these aliens to use our own culture and civilized practices for the purpose of destroying us!

* * *

NO WONDER they want to stay here! Think of the loot! It is like inviting a man to sit in your office chair so that he can more comfortably shoot you.

The Communists, both of the foreign and home-spawned varieties, are strong for the preservation of American civil liberties when their own liberties are threatened.

But when they come into power, as in Russia, presto!—all civil liberties disappear and the Karllsons line up against a wall anyone who utters those words of hated democratic-capitalistic origin, civil liberties.

A political dissenter in Russia when arrested is hurried before a MILITARY TRIBUNAL. He has no counsel (that is a capitalistic custom). There is not even a trial. There is a "hearing" (the military tribunal HEAR themselves pronounce sentence), and the objector to Communism is hurried up against a wall.

The only writ of habeas corpus is written by the vultures if the fellow is not buried in quicklime.

* * *

SIXTY-SIX of these cases in one day is the last Communist "purge"!

And Karllson and his Communist plotters yawp about their "rights"!

As a matter of fact, Karllson and his alien cronies know that they are having the time of their lives in free America. They never breathed freely before they came here.

But it is time to check the breathing of these plotters, of all plotters of all patterns—Communists, Naziists and Faccists—and make them understand that this democratic-individualistic Republic is still a going concern.

The Communists dish it out (in Russia), but they can't take it (in the U. S. A.)

THERE SHOULD BE NO CIVIL RIGHTS FOR THOSE WHO DO NOT BELIEVE IN THEM.

The dictatorship of the proletariat means the end of everything that is fundamentally American! Liberty, self-reliance, private property, civil procedure, free speech, free press and even free movement.

It would be the return of ant-civilization. Instead of the free-flying eagle as our emblem, a Communist regime would substitute A BUG.

* * *

WHAT the Communists here need is a dish of their own cooking. Do unto them as they have done unto the minorities in Russia!

The time for action is NOW. Let democracy destroy Communism. Don't wait until the Fascist man-on-horseback appears!
